Northeast Fights Battle With Paralyzing Snow

Highway, Plane Travel Crippled; Nearly 100 Dead

By The Associated Press

The Northeast fought a relentless battle with muscle and machine Sunday to dig out from under a strangling Saturday snowstorm.

The storm was blamed for nearly 100 deaths by unofficial estimate.

Entire communities, including some major cities, were virtually immobilized under snow as high as 30 inches.

Winds that were clocked steadily as high as 75 miles an hour swirled the snow in drifts higher than the tops of automobiles.

The creeping paralysis began early Saturday when the two-pronged storm swept into the Northeast from the west and from the south.

By mid-day Saturday the disruption of travel and vital services was nearly complete as the storm swept northward from the Carolinas, Virginia and West Virginia through Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, and southern and central New England.

Numerous major highways were clogged with thousands of snow-stalled automobiles, bus lines and commuter trains abandoned schedules and airports in the Northeast closed down.

Entire communities lost power and telephone service, principally because overhead lines could not stand the strain of the heavy snow and high winds.

For the first time ever, New York City officially banned all automobile travel except for official and emergency trips.

Nearly a dozen cities and towns, mostly in New England, proclaimed emergency conditions.

As the Northeast was digging out from under its heavy shroud, heavy snow fell Sunday from Nebraska southward over Kansas and into Oklahoma and portions of north central Texas.

Heavy rain fell in the southern areas.

The Weather Bureau reported the storm in the south central portion of the nation was heading eastward and a little to the north, but added that it poses no immediate threat to the already-battered Northeast.

Sunny weather in the 30s aided the snowdiggers, who took no Sunday holiday.

The storm followed 16 consecutive days of below freezing temperature. Oil dealers in New England reported consumption of heating fuel was up 16 per cent from the same period last year.

Rhode Island state officials called the Saturday storm the worst in that state in at least 57 years.

Major buslines said they hope to restore service by Monday morning. Airlines said plane travel also might be possible by morning.

The through trains of such lines as the Pennsylvania, New Haven and New York Central railroads continued service during the storm, although no attempt was possible to adhere to schedules.

Ship Hijackers Like Tourists When Off Duty

By SAUL PETT

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—In retrospect, the adventure of the Santa Maria seems even more incredible than it did when she sailed out of old Caribbean pirate waters under rebel command.

For example, Capt. Henrique Galvao's men paid for their drinks. Unlike pirates of old, they didn't commandeer the ship's liquor stocks. Unlike modern expense account pirates, they didn't charge things with a credit card. These men paid cash money.

All in all, as American passengers still in Recife recall details of their 12-day captivity, it is more obvious the seagoing revolution was a 9-to-5 affair, much like country club members taking time off for socializing with the passengers.

When they came off watch the rebels put aside their guns, showered in their cabins and changed to neat civilian clothes—usually dark business suits, white shirts and ties. They were like young executives on the way up.

Then they drank, dined, chatted and danced with passengers, went to the movies and even helped entertain.

Off duty, the rebels acted like tourists. They swam in the pool while comrades stood guard with guns. They lounged in deck chairs, but were always polite enough to offer a lady a seat.

They took pictures, still and movie, and had pictures taken of themselves with passengers.

One rebel, after posing with a passenger for a tourist photographer, said: "Please be kind enough to send a copy to my mother in Portugal."

One business-suited rebel played the piano for teatime entertainment of passengers in the first-class lounge.

A Chopin prelude drew a remark from a passenger that he should be playing something more appropriate to the times. So he swung into Chopin's revolutionary "Polonaise."

The ship anchored 65 miles off Recife and Galvao summoned cabin-class passengers by loudspeaker to the first-class dining room last Monday night for "a farewell dinner at eight."

This was three days before the captives were freed.

Galvao and his chief lieutenants made a grand entrance like big butter-and-egg men from Cleveland. They were escorted regally by the maitre de. They and the passengers sat down to an eight-course dinner, with wines and coffee in the lounge later.

This was the best meal the cabin-class passengers had on the whole trip. The menu was labeled "The Santa Maria En Route to Liberty."

Crazed Man Kills 4, Self

WARDELL, Mo. (AP) —Four Negroes were slain early Sunday by a Negro farm laborer who then set fire to a six-room frame house and turned a shotgun on himself.

The shooting occurred after the assailant herded 15 persons who were sleeping in the house into one room and threatened to kill them all.

Sheriff Clyde Orton said George Barnett, 30, of Hayti, Mo., broke into Ronie Hall's home about one mile west of Wardell in southeast Missouri shortly after 1 a.m.

Occupants of the house reported Barnett roused them from bed and forced them into a room where he announced he was going to kill them. In the panicked flight that followed, 11 persons, including Mrs. Hall, 65, escaped from the house.

Four persons whose flight was cut off were Margaret King, 30; her 10-month-old son, Melton James King; Magnolia Jackson, and her son, Eddie Lee Jackson, 2.

Coroner Jimmy Osborne and several farmers from the area recovered the five bodies from the still smouldering ruins of the home.

Cuba President Links Kennedy To Church Plot

HAVANA (AP) — President Osvaldo Dorticos charged Sunday the Kennedy administration is linked to what he called intensified counterrevolutionary activity by the Roman Catholic Church.

Making the first open attack on the new U. S. government by a top-ranking Cuban official, Dorticos accused the Church and its schools of teaching hate for Prime Minister Fidel Castro's revolution.

Anti-Castro activity by the Church is increasing, he said, "not by accident but by very clear and significant coincidence during the same moments when the new North American administration is destroying the first hopes of reconciliation (between the United States and Cuba) by stepping up aid to the counter-revolution in exile."

This was a reference to U. S. aid to Cuban refugees in Miami, Fla.

"These deeds coincide, those positions go together," Dorticos said. "The maneuver is stripped naked and counterrevolutionary strategy is evident."

Dorticos spoke at a postmidnight teachers' rally. In a speech to the same group, Education Minister Armando Hart foreshadowed the end of private education in Cuba.

He said private Catholic schools were "inculcating most absurd ideas" and poisoning and intoxicating their students.

"The national school is making one type of man without prejudice, without fears, and the private school is creating another type of man full of prejudices and full of lies. We are not going to permit it."

TAIPEI, Formosa, Feb. 5 (AP) —The Chinese Communists fired 19 shells at the Quemoy Islands Sunday in the first action against the complex in seven days, the Chinese Nationalist Defense Ministry reported.

Castro Seizes Water Company Supplying Base

HAVANA (UPI)—Breaking with the new Kennedy administration, the Fidel Castro government Sunday seized the water company supplying the U.S. Guantanamo Naval Base.

The government "intervened" the Caimanera Acqueduct Company, which is the main source of fresh water to bone-dry Guantanamo, but at last report no attempt had been made to close the pipes.

The Navy has said it would counter any such move to force it from Guantanamo by bringing in water by tanker.

Rocket Flight Tests Potential Space Fuel

WASHINGTON (AP)—A rocket was shot 94 miles high from Wallops Island, Va., Sunday to test the behavior of liquid hydrogen—a potential space fuel—under zero gravity conditions.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the primary objectives of the test were met successfully.

Alpine Avalanches Smash Hamlet; At Least 4 Dead

BARDONECCHIA, Italy (AP)—Two Alpine avalanches smashed a mountain hamlet and crushed a laborers' barracks Sunday along the French-Italian frontier.

Four are known dead. Four are missing and feared killed. Five are injured, three of them seriously.

But, amazingly, almost the entire population of the wrecked hamlet escaped uninjured. Ninety persons—almost all of the residents—were huddled together for warmth in the few houses that were spared when tons of snow buried 24 of the hamlet's 30 homes.

The avalanche crashed down from Cima della Gran Valle—the Peak of the Grand Valley—at 1:30 a.m. upon the hamlet of Rochemolles, on the Italian-French frontier, 6,100 feet up on Mt. Mellisse.

Eighteen of the town's 30 homes were destroyed. The church was wrecked. Six other homes were damaged so badly they will have to be torn down.

Border police, Alpine troops and ski guides fought their way through a snowstorm for 2½ hours to get to the scene. From the debris and snow they recovered the bodies of the four persons and saved the five injured and two who were unhurt.

Rochemolles has a population during most of the year of 200 to 250. But during the rigorous months of winter only the elderly residents remain. The others come to Bardonecchia as ski guides or take winter jobs in tourist resorts in France or Switzerland.

Santa Maria Passengers Resume Trip

Embark On Sister Ship; Americans Fly Home Today

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—Most of the Santa Maria's European passengers headed for Lisbon Sunday aboard a heavily guarded sister ship, the Vera Cruz. Most of the Americans from the hijacked liner packed for a flight home Monday.

Joining in the exodus were U. S. planes and destroyers which hunted down and kept watch on the Portuguese vessel finally surrendered to Brazil by rebel Capt. Henrique Galvao at the weekend and then turned back to its owners, the Colonial Navigation Co.

About 450 of the nearly 600 passengers — mainly Spaniards and Portuguese — boarded the Vera Cruz for resumption of a trip interrupted when Galvao and his band captured the Santa Maria in the Caribbean two weeks ago.

Both Ships Under Guard

The Vera Cruz already was carrying 220 passengers she took on at Rio de Janeiro and Santos, Brazil. Eastbound to Lisbon, her home port, she is to stop at Portugal's Cape Verde Islands, the Spanish island of Tenerife, Funchal, Madeira, and Vigo, Spain.

A strong Portuguese guard patrolled the Vera Cruz to make certain there was no repetition of the Santa Maria episode, a seizure that Galvao said was aimed to start the ouster of Portugal's Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar.

The Santa Maria, restored Saturday to her regular skipper, remained under strong guard. The skipper, Capt. Mario Simoes Maia, wept at the return of the ship.

The $16.6-million liner will remain at this South Atlantic port three more days, taking on oil, water and food and undergoing minor repairs.

Cost Company $100,000 A Day

A representative of the shipping line, in which Portugal's government has a minority interest, estimated Galvao's adventure cost the company about $100,000 a day, aside from the blow to its prestige.

Thirty-eight Americans start their journey home Sunday night. They are booked to leave the Amazon delta city of Belem, 1,050 miles northwest of Recife, at 3 a.m. Monday aboard the Real Airline flight 802 for Miami, Fla.

Galvao, who declares he will fight on, plans to go to Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo or Brasilia once he is given permission to leave town. Although he had been promised political asylum, police have temporarily restricted his movements.

Sharpshooter Drops Escapee

MONTREAL (AP) — A provincial police sharpshooter wounded escaped convict Donald Pollock with two bullets early Sunday, ending 14 hours of suspense and terror for Pollock's woman hostage.

The woman, Mrs. Rolland Cyr, was slightly wounded, apparently when a rifle Pollock had grabbed from a guard at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary went off as he stumbled after being shot.

Both Pollock, hit in the shoulder and wrist, and Mrs. Cyr, 42, wife of the penitentiary paymaster, were reported in satisfactory condition Sunday night.

Jean Maurice Leblanc, 55, shot in the chest by Pollock shortly after the convict escaped, also was reported in satisfactory condition.

Pollock, 22, escaped by slugging a guard after a prisoners' hockey game played outside the penitentiary walls.

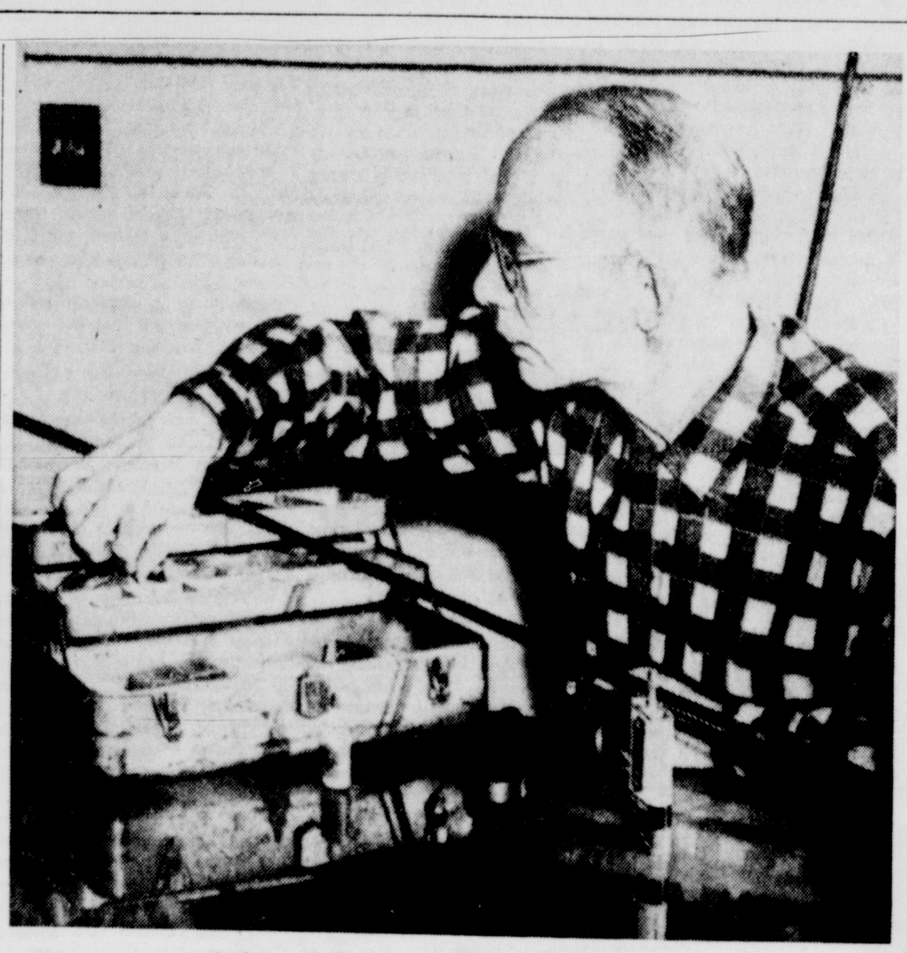
He grabbed the guard's .303-caliber rifle and ran to the Cyr house, near the prison.

10 Bodies Recovered After Slag Heap Slide

MOULINS-SOUS-FLERON, Belgium (AP)—Six more bodies were recovered during Saturday night from thousands of tons of mud and debris that swept through this village Friday night after a 300-foot-high slag heap collapsed.

Ten bodies now have been found and officials report only one other person missing.

The slag heap, high on a hill overlooking the village, apparently was weakened by heavy rain and collapsed when workmen dumped a load of cinders from a power station on top. Six houses were buried and 10 damaged.



His Heart Recharged

Jim Miller, Wenatchee, Wash., electrician, sorts out his fishing gear for some angling folks thought he'd never be able to do a few months ago. His heart was slowing almost to a stop. But surgeons at the University of Washington hospital in Seattle put a tiny battery inside his body and ran electrodes into Miller's heart muscles. The rare operation has made Miller almost like new. Angola Rioting Renewed; Score Reported Slain

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Renewed rioting broke out Sunday in Luanda, capital of Angola, and four persons were killed and seven wounded, the Portuguese news agency Lusitania reported.

The dispatch said the disorders broke out at funeral services for seven police and soldiers killed in a clash last Friday when a brawling crowd was machine-gunned.

Lusitania said persons involved in an attempted march Friday on a police station in the Portuguese territory in West Africa apparently mixed with the funeral crowd Sunday and suddenly began shooting. The agency did not identify the victims.

Portuguese spokesmen, charging that the Friday outbreak was the result of an attempt to capture police stations, said there were 16 casualties, including seven security men and nine demonstrators. The spokesmen said modern Czechoslovak weapons were seized in the incident.

Three of the dead police were whites, a police spokesman said. About 20 persons were known to have been injured and five were arrested.

An official of Portugal's international police denied the crowd was marching on a police station or taking part in an uprising in this Portuguese West African colony. He declined, however, to issue any details.

Gov. Gen. Alvaro Silva Tavares announced Saturday that an armed uprising, supposedly timed with the ill-fated seizure of the Portuguese liner Santa Maria, had been crushed. He said attacks were made on Luanda's police headquarters and the civil and military prisons in an attempt to free prisoners.

The governor general said both sides suffered losses, but did not say how many. The city was quiet after the shooting. Transportation ran on schedule and no army or police patrols were to be seen on the streets.

Angola is governed as a province of Portugal under the rigid one-party system of Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar's national union.

Danish Ship Sinks Following Collision

YOKOHAMA (UPI) — A Danish freighter sank Sunday in Tokyo harbor after colliding with an American freighter.

Reports from the scene said everyone aboard the American ship was safe but that five seamen were missing from the Danish ship and that ten persons were injured.

The 6,419-ton Laust Maersk sank about an hour after colliding with the 6,759-ton Alcoa Pioneer at the entrance to Tokyo harbor, according to the Japanese coast guard.

Jerusalem Wall Believed Built By Herod Found

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—A wall, believed to be part of the ancient city wall of Jerusalem built by Herod the Great 20 centuries ago, has been unearthed in the Old City of Jerusalem.

The discovery was made a few days ago by municipal laborers digging the foundation of a school near the Dun Gate—a few feet from the southern wall of the dome of the rock mosque.

The Antiquities Department took over, and excavations later revealed the wall was built of huge stones running from north to south, parallel to the wall of the mosque. Diggers have unearthed an 80-foot section, about six feet high.

Three Downed Fliers Rescued

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP) — Two men and a girl were rescued Sunday from a mountainside where their plane crashed in a snowstorm late Friday.

A sign "help" stamped in snow 66 inches deep was spotted by one of 40 search pilots. His directions led a snow Weasel to the wreckage from a village three miles away.

Pat Floyd, 23, city manager of Alamosa, was most seriously injured of the three whose plane crashed on a flight to Alamosa from Denver. He suffered second- and third-degree frostbite of both feet.

His sister Betty, 19, suffered a sprained ankle and the pilot, Bill Bradley of Alamosa, suffered first-degree frostbite of his feet.

The plane crashed into the rugged west side of 9,382-foot La La Veta Pass, 45 miles north of New Mexico. The crash ripped off a wing and damaged the other. Heavy snow cushioned the crash.

In the wreckage, Floyd found his cigaret lighter and "that made the difference between life and freezing to death." The trio used the plane's motor oil as fuel for fires.

Kennedy Told $2 Billion Dip Into Red Looms

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's advisers have told him that instead of inheriting a budget surplus from the Eisenhower administration he faces a $2-billion defici in the current fiscal year.

This bleak financial outlook is expected to be emphasized by Kennedy in a message to Congress Monday in which he will lay down a program aimed at halting the outflow of gold.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower estimated in his Jan. 16 budget message that the Treasury would wind up this bookkeeping year on June 30 with a $79-million surplus.

However, Kennedy's experts have advised him their own most optimistic estimates indicate at least a $2-billion dip into the red.

This figure was reported based solely on spending Eisenhower had budgeted. It does not include outlays called for in the antirecession program Kennedy sent to Congress last week.

Although Kennedy has not discussed details of his new message with congressional chiefs, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said in an interview he looks for submission of a broad program to curb the flight of gold.

Mansfield noted that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has asked families of service personnel each to spend $80 less a year abroad. The Senate leader said it is his understanding the government will not pay the freight home for foreign autos purchased by servicemen, as it has in the past.

The Montana senator speculated Kennedy will ask Congress to reduce the $500 customs-free allowance Americans traveling abroad now may claim for goods purchased in foreign countries.

He said this would be calculated to reduce dollar expenditures abroad and encourage purchases at home.

Kennedys Hear Pastor Say Pope Can Sin, Err

WASHINGTON (AP)—President and Mrs. Kennedy attended Mass Sunday—she for the first time as First Lady. They heard the pastor say the Pope can sin and make mistakes, but never with regard to Roman Catholic Church doctrine and the teachings of Christ.

With Mrs. Kennedy by his side, the chief executive drove through slushy streets from the White House to Holy Trinity Roman Catholic church in Georgetown. That is where he customarily worshipped in the days before he became president.

After the assistant pastor, the Rev. Alfred Kienle said the Mass, the pastor, the Rev. Martin J. Casey, gave the sermon. It was based around the thought that many non-Catholics have a false idea of the Church's doctrine of the infallibility of the Pope.

Popes led armies into battle, were defeated and imprisoned, he said. Many of them thought the world was flat and certainly were mistaken in their ideas of astronomy and physics.

"It would be ridiculous," he said, "to think a Pope cannot make a mistake.

But the Catholic Church does have a doctrine of infallibility of the Pope, Father Casey said, and it is this: "The Pope is infallible, he cannot make a mistake, when as head of the Church, he defines doctrine of faith or morals."

All the popes have made mistakes, and all have sinned, he added, "but not one of them has ever led us astray from the teachings of Christ."

The Kennedys occupied a pew in the balcony. Elsewhere in the church, there was standing room only.

Long Soviet Silence Stirs Speculation

No Further Word As To Progress Of 7-Ton Satellite

MOSCOW (AP) — Launching of the seven-ton Sputnik was hailed by the Soviet press Sunday as a significant step toward manned space flight. But there was an unusual silence about its progress.

None of the papers gave any technical details beyond those announced by the Tass news agency and the Moscow radio Saturday.

In Washington, there were no comment or reports on the new Sputnik from the White House, the Pentagon or the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. A NASA spokesman said "all we know is what we read on the news wires."

Transport engineer V. Zvonkov said in an article in the Communist youth newspaper Komsomol Pravda that the lofting of this biggest man-made earth satellite brings manned space flights even closer.

Zvonkov failed to say when this might come about. Other Soviet scientists have in the past said much research remains to be done.

The labor newspaper Trud said the launching proves the thrust of Soviet rockets has improved considerably because this Sputnik is nearly two tons heavier than the largest previously fired aloft. He referred to two sent up by the U.S.S.R. last August and December.

A scientific writer of the Tass news agency, touching on the same theme, said, "The increase in thrust must be well ahead of the increase in weight."

Prof. V. Fedynsky, a Soviet physicist, expressed hope that instruments of the new Sputnik—reported shot into an orbit that carried it 203.1 miles from the earth at its highest point and 138.5 miles at its lowest—will yield new data on top layers of the earth's atmosphere.

Red Scientist Hints Satellite Is Unmanned

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet scientist hinted Sunday night that the seven-ton Russian Sputnik hurled into orbit Saturday is an unmanned satellite. He said it was on a data gathering mission.

Prof. Yevgeny Leonodivich Klinov said the new satellite was designed "to study the earth as a planet and to make a study of its nearest environment, including that of meteoritic dangers," and was in a different category than earlier Soviet space ships sent up with dogs and other animals.

Moscow Radio identified Klinov as president of the International Committee for Meteoric Studies of the World Geophysical Association.

Several Possibilities For Russian Silence

LONDON (AP)—Britain's leading expert on satellite tracking said Sunday night he is inclined to think something has gone wrong aboard the seven-ton Soviet Sputnik—perhaps the breakdown of its radio.

"There is certainly something odd about the long Russian silence on the satellite's progress," said Prof. Bernard Lovell, director of the Jodrell Bank tracking station.

"If the silence continues, I shall be inclined to believe that something went wrong shortly after the launching."

A baffling silence has settled over the flight through space of the giant Sputnik. Thirty hours

Study Report Backs Stronger Role For Secretary Of State

WASHINGTON (AP) — While again rejecting the Eisenhower idea of an American prime minister, congressional investigators Sunday urged a more powerful role in national affairs for the secretary of state.

A staff report of the Senate National Policy Machinery subcommittee deplored what it described as the dilution of the secretary of state's responsibility in the formation of security policy.

The study was issued with a personal endorsement by the chairman, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

The report criticized what one of the subcommittee's star witnesses last year, Republican financier Robert A. Lovett, former secretary of defense, called "the foulup factor."

The foulup, the staff said, results from the exuberant growth in Washington of interagency coordinating committees. These committees give dozens of departments and offices a hand in the policy process, "requiring power to be shared even though responsibility may not be," the report said.

The study endorsed one remedy offered by another witness—W. Averell Harriman, President Kennedy's ambassador-at-large and onetime secretary of commerce, among other federal and state posts. Harriman suggested creating a "committee-killing outfit."

It would be the job of the committee-killers, the Senate report suggested, to canvass all the interagency committees at intervals and identify those which are no longer needed and "merit extinction." The report suggested the Budget Bureau might properly undertake this chore.

Jackson issued a statement saying the staff's proposals were intended to strengthen the position of the secretary of state as the president's right hand on foreign policy and national security.

Copies have been submitted to Kennedy and to Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Jackson said.

In its first staff study, issued in November, the subcommittee disputed the proposal of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's reorganization adviser, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, that the U. S. government needs a "first secretary." Such an official would outrank the Cabinet, with prime responsibility over national security affairs, including military matters.

A similar idea was proposed by Eisenhower in his final budget message to the new Congress last month. But the Jackson subcommittee staff rejected it again in Sunday's report. Jackson said he agreed with the staff that no "radical reorganizational change" is needed.

"It is the secretary of state, not a superstaff or supersecretary, who should be the president's first adviser," Jackson said.

The staff study declared that "a full and sympathetic partnership" between the State and Defense departments is vital to the attainment of national security goals, and must be attained despite "the deep-seated differences of tradition and outlook which have stood between" them.

In two other recommendations the report contained implied criticisms of techniques used by the Eisenhower administration, although it made no direct reference to specific practices or personalities.

The report's comments on budget-making echoed some of the frequent criticisms leveled in recent years at the Eisenhower administration's alleged practice of fixing an over-all budget ceiling and obliging the defense and other departments to squeeze their requests to fit.

The Jackson subcommittee report said the secretary of state should give the Pentagon the benefit of his views on international political strategy and the relationship between military manpower and weapons and the problems of foreign policy.

"Moreover, the counsel of the two secretaries (defense and state) should be sought by the president at the target-selling stage in the annual budgetary cycle — before the initial over-all budgetary ceiling is established," the study added.

The frequent absences from Washington of the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on missions of personal diplomacy were recalled in another section of the staff study.

"Much of the effectiveness of the secretary of state depends on his being in Washington, on hand for advising the president, leading his department, and consulting with the Congress," the report said.

"Recent secretaries of state have been away from their home base much of the time. Ways must be found to relieve the secretary of state of part of these travel and negotiating burdens."

AF Tests Midget Atom Generator

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force said Sunday it is testing a portable nuclear generator, weighing considerably less than 40 pounds, which converts heat directly into electrical power.

The Air Research and Development Command said the testing is under way at the Albuquerque, N. M., Special Weapons Center.

Only 10 inches high and with a diameter of 16 inches, the generator was developed as a means of furnishing reliable and long-lasting power for small unmanned surface radio beacons and weather stations.

Long Soviet

after announcing it was in orbit, the Soviet Union had still given no further word on its progress.

Prof. Lovell said several possibilities occurred to him to account for the Soviet silence.

"One possibility is that the radio may have broken down. At present this seems the likeliest explanation — although this is purely speculation.

"Or it may be that the Russians are controlling it to transmit only when it is below our (British) horizon. This is not very likely as the signals might still be picked up elsewhere in the world."

The professor said another possibility was the new Sputnik is transmitting on frequencies which have not been used before.

"It may be, of course," he added, "that there is some living thing on board—not necessarily a man—and the Russians are saying nothing until they get the satellite safely back to earth."

Rioting Flares In Scattered Points Of Globe

By The Associated Press

Riots and demonstrations erupted this weekend at widely scattered points in the world from political, racial and labor causes.

The most serious was in Luanda, Angola, Portugal's West African territory where Portuguese police said seven police and soldiers and a number of demonstrators were killed Saturday.

Angola Gov. Gen. Alvaro Silva Tavares said attacks, connected with the seizure of the Portuguese passenger ship Santa Maria at sea by revolutionaries, were made on a police headquarters and prisons. An official of Portugal's international police denied, however, that there was any uprising.

A Canadian tourist said police, attempting to break up what appeared to be a drunken brawl, fired on a crowd and left about 30 persons writhing on the ground.

"The place looked like a slaughterhouse," he reported.

In India, two people were killed and 50 injured in a riot between Hindus and Moslems at Jubbulpore Saturday. The suicide of a Hindu girl raped by two Moslems set off the disturbance. Police arrested 94 persons and used tear gas to break up the fight.

In Tehran, hundreds of students shouted antigovernment slogans Sunday in another demonstration protesting alleged lack of freedom in current elections. The government has blamed the Tudeh—Communist — party for the agitation. Police used clubs and fired into the air to scatter the gathering.

About 300 South Korean employes of the U. S. armed forces demonstrated in Seoul for an hour demanding pay increases and improved working conditions.

Rightists clashed with antimissile base demonstrators on Japan's Niijima Island where Japan's Defense Agency has been trying for the last three years to establish its first guided missile testing range. Three persons were reported injured.

Carnival Hotel Business Slow

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The first Carnival parades wound gaily through New Orleans this weekend, but the usual "no vacancy" response from hotel clerks was missing.

Crowds turned out in clear 50-degree weather to cheer colorful floats. They stretched and called to lavishly costumed figures tossing favors.

And Edward (Ted) Kennedy, the President's brother, was scheduled to be in town and attend the masked ball of the Krewe (secret society) of Carrollton.

But Larry Choppin, president of the New Orleans Hotel Association, said advance reservations were "slower than ever." He attributed the falloff to recent school integration troubles and bad weather through the country.

The parade season features two weeks of day and night street parades witnessed by thousands.

The climax is Mardi Gras—which this year falls on Valentine's Day, Feb. 14—a final merry-making before Ash Wednesday begins Lenten fasting.

Two Killed, 51 Hurt In India Rioting

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Two people were killed and 51 injured in rioting between Hindus and Moslems at Jubbulpore Saturday following the suicide of a young Hindu girl student. The girl was alleged to have taken her life after being raped by two Moslem youth... This report touched off a pitched battle between the two communities. Hundreds of young people—armed with sticks, bottles and stones—clashed in the town center. Police restored order, using tear gas, and arrested 94 persons.

Queen's Cousin Riled By Drinkers' Invasion

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Lord Granville, Queen Elizabeth's cousin, wants to ban Sunday drinking on his Hebridean island of North Uist and so head off a weekly invasion from the neighboring island of South Uist—always on Sundays.

The two islands in the outer Hebrides off the east coast of Scotland are separated by a two-mile strip of the Atlantic Ocean—but they are divided by more than that.

The inhabitants of North Uist (pop. 2,579) are "Wee Frees"—the strictest of strict Presbyterians. They believe in a completely funless Sabbath. The inhabitants of South Uist (pop. 3,235) are Roman Catholics and prefer a slightly more "Continental" Sunday.

Another difference is that the north island's Lochmaddy Hotel—also owned by the queen's cousin—is the only bar on the islands with a license to serve drink on Sundays.

Until last fall, under the watchful eye of the stern Presbyterians in control of the island, there was never any great Sunday trade. But in September, Queen Mother Elizabeth opened a causeway between the two islands.

It was designed to bring them closer together but it only pushed them farther apart. For instead of having to risk a journey in a rowboat, the Southerners could stream across the causeway on a Sunday bound for the bar of the Lochmaddy Hotel. The southerners used bicycles, rode horses, and even walked to get a drop.

All this activity aroused the ire of the strict "Wee Frees." The northerners staged angry protest meetings. They sent a petition to Lord Granville, ultimate authority on the island. Now Lord Granville has instructed the manager of the Lochmaddy Hotel to apply to the licensing justices for a six-day liquor license instead of the current seven-day license, eliminating Sunday.

Sir Compton MacKenzie, author of many comic novels about the western islands — including the best-selling "Whisky Galore"—had his own solution: Let the south island people get their own liquor license.

One consolation remains for the men of South Uist: The next sitting on the local licensing court is not until April—and nothing can be done until then.

Gaitskell Put In Bit Of Spot

OXFORD, England (AP) — Ten bottles of golden sherry have plunged Hugh Gaitskell, British Labor party leader, into a spot of political embarrassment.

The sherry was served at a reception Jan. 27 for Gaitskell by Oxford University's Labor Club, which takes its socialism very seriously.

Everyone there enjoyed the sherry, which was served from decanters, so that no bottles with labels were on view.

It was only afterward that the terrible news came out. Gaitskell and company had been drinking South African sherry.

And everyone at the reception was pledged never to buy any South African product as a protest against the South African racial laws.

"This may seem funny to you but it's not funny to Mr. Gaitskell" said club organizer John Gyford Saturday night.

He ordered an inquiry into who bought the South African sherry and who told the waiter to serve it from decanters.

The waiter had the last word: "I had specific instructions to get that wine from a member who said the club couldn't afford Spanish sherry."

Father Seized For Threatening Baby Daughter

BALTIMORE (AP)—Police arrested a 26-year-old Baltimore man Sunday after he threatened to throw his one-year-old daughter from a second story ledge of their house.

Leslie Redman also threatened to cut the throat of the child, Kathy Sue, with a razor.

He took refuge on the ledge when police went to the house to question him about an alleged argument he had had with his wife at a tavern.

As Sgt. Joseph Bierman talked to him from the street, two police officers, Sgt. John Barnold and Patrolman Alfred Moog, went up a back fire escape and entered the building through a window.

Sgt. Barnold carried Kathy Sue to safety and Moog captured Redman as he tried to escape through a window he had broken. The child was unhurt.

He was taken to Maryland General Hospital with superficial cuts he suffered when he tried to go through the window.

Redman was charged with assault and threatening his daughter. He was being held for examination by doctors at Spring Grove Mental Hospital.

U.S., Poland Air 'Peace Projects'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Poland have started informal talks on how to use some $365 million on various "peace projects" in that Communist country.

The talks, it was learned Sunday, began in the wake of President Kennedy's State of the Union message in which he announced his intention "to explore with the Polish government the possibility of using our frozen Polish funds on projects of peace that will demonstrate our abiding friendship for the people of Poland."

Officials said the talks are in an exploratory stage.

The $365 million is the total value of surplus food sold to Poland and paid for in zlotys, the Polish currency.

The United States has used some of the zlotys for its embassy in Warsaw, for participation in trade fairs in Poland, and for a limited cultural exchange program. But the bulk of the money remains frozen.

The Battle Act forbids use of such funds to aid Iron Curtain countries.

The present talks, officials said, are aimed mainly at reaching some understanding with the Poles on the character of projects to be considered, should Congress give authorization.

Commission Urges Patuxent Be Given Independent Status

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A special legislative commission has recommended that Maryland's Patuxent Institution be divorced from the Department of Correction and given independent status.

It recommended that the psychiatric prison for defective delinquents be placed under control of a five-member policy board to be appointed by the governor.

The commission, headed by federal Judge Roszel C. Thomsen, said in its report to the General Assembly the present statutory division of responsibility between the Board of Correction and Patuxent's director has "resulted in controversies because of fundamentally different points of view . . ."

The commission was appointed by the Legislative Council to investigate Patuxent after a series of investigations had resulted in conflicting reports about the institution, which was opened at Jessup, Md. on Jan. 5, 1955.

The commission generally upheld the practicality of the defective delinquent law, under which chronic lawbreakers are sent to Patuxent in an effort to rehabilitate them and release them into society.

It agreed such commitments should be for indeterminate periods but recommended an inmate should not be considered for a redetermination of his status until near the end of any sentence he received for the crime committed.

"We recommend that Patuxent be continued and that it be given sufficient support to permit a sound evaluation of its endeavors," the commission said in the report made public Sunday.

"The safeguarding of the public which has already been achieved is so fundamental that in itself shows the wisdom of law and establishment of Patuxent," the report said.

It recommended, however, that "more discretion" should be exercised in administration of the defective delinquent law and increased appropriation should be allocated to relieve shortages of staff and facilities.

An interim evaluation of Patuxent was suggested in five years and a more thorough evaluation in ten.

The report said that in view of the lack of physical facilities and professional help on the Board of Correction, "to give control over Patuxent's administration to the Department of Correction would result in a fatal dilution of Patuxent's resources and the virtual end of the hopeful project which Patuxent represents."

"We further believe than an autonomous Patuxent for a limited term would, in the end, be an ultimate advantage to our penal system as a whole," the report added.

In referring to the five member policy board which would govern Patuxent, the commission said:

"We recommend that two members, one of whom should be a psychiatrist, be chosen from the (present) advisory board and the others . . . be business and professional men whose standing in the community and interest in the problems with which Patuxent deals will be such that they will command the respect of its director and staff and of officials and agencies of the state."

The commission said the differences of opinion over administration of Patuxent "have seriously handicapped" its development and "have interfered with proper governmental responsibility."

The new policy board setup was also recommended to "assure that security will be given its proper emphasis."

Patuxent came under fire in 1959 when 34 inmates participated in a mass escape and was subjected to a series of investigations as a result of that breach of security.

". . . The people of the state must realize that if it were not for Patuxent, most of the men now there would be released in a relatively few years at the end of their regular sentence, with little or no treatment or training to fit them for normal life in the community," the report said.

The study group also pointed out that "Patuxent is and will continue to be inherently much more expensive than strictly penal institutions . . . If Patuxent is to be continued, the public must accept the relatively high cost which an adequate professional staff and other essentials of its functions entail."

May Attend Meeting

LONDON (UPI) — The Sunday Times said Sunday that President Kennedy may attend the NATO ministers' meeting in Oslo May 9.

The newspaper's Washington correspondent wrote that Kennedy "likes quick action" and may go to Europe a month after Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan visits him in the White House on April 4.

Maryland News In Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph Goldstein, president of the Wilson Line, has announced he plans to use two 375-passenger low-draft pleasure craft for sightseeing along the Potomac River waterfront this spring.

Goldstein said he expects to use the craft for night dinner and dancing cruises, private charter cruises and regularly scheduled night sight-seeing trips on the Potomac and Anacostia rivers.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—Funeral services will be held here for Harry Treston Henshaw, a former state senator and former member of the State Road Commission.

Henshaw died at his home Saturday at the age of 74.

He was a native of Spring Hill in Berkeley County. He served several terms in the State Senate as a Democrat from the 16th District. He also was a retired vice president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad.

BALTIMORE (AP) — T. Edgie Russell, General Contractor Inc. of Frederick, has been awarded a $227,445 State contract for grading, draining and surfacing three-tenths of a mile of Frederick Road in Baltimore County.

The State Roads Commission announced the award Saturday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maryland and District of Columbia highway officials are reported to be in preliminary agreement on a new corridor for bringing U. S. 240 into downtown Washington.

The alignment discussed would run east of Rock Creek Park and would bring the eight-lane expressway into Washington on a north-south line roughly paralleling Georgia Avenue.

John B. Funk, chairman and director of the Maryland State Roads Commission, said the plan is to engage the same firm to plot both the Maryland and District of columbia portions of the route. The report on the Maryland leg could be ready within six months, he said.

Federal Slot Probe Asked

BALTIMORE (AP)—The president of the Charles County Ministerial Association said Sunday the federal government had been called upon to take action against slot machine operations in four Southern Maryland counties where they are legal.

The Rev. A. L. Gunn, pastor of the Indian Head Methodist Church, said Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy had been asked to investigate the situation because of what he termed "excessive concern over slot machines."

Rev. Gunn made his comments on a local television program.

Referring to a meeting with Gov. Tawes last week by over 100 members of the association, Rev. Gunn said the governor "could have given us much stronger support than he did."

Tawes told a delegation of ministers that legislation to outlaw such gambling in Charles, St. Marys, Anne Arundel and Calvert counties would probably fail unless endorsed by local delegates to the General Assembly.

With the support of Catholic clergy from the Baltimore and Washington areas, the group is seeking to bring pressure on slot machine interests during the current session of the legislature.

4 Maryland Murder Cases Investigated By Authorities

By The Associated Press

Police were investigating four Maryland murders Sunday, the victims of which were two women and two men.

In the latest of the murders, two Baltimore men died at Baltimore General Hospital Sunday, as a result of stab wounds they had received a few hours earlier. The victims were Frank O. Blosser, 36, and William McCall, 19.

Witnesses told police the two men were walking along a street when a car carrying a group of youths stopped and an argument began. After a fight, the car drove off, and the two men were found stabbed. Police were holding a young suspect who was found carrying a 14-inch butcher knife wrapped in newspaper.

Ballistics tests were scheduled for Monday in an effort to solve the murder of Miss Eleanor A. Lawrence, 27, of Kensington, Md.

The body of Miss Lawrence, a government clerk, was found near her home Friday, slumped over a jack next to her car. Police said a .38-caliber bullet wound in the head had caused her death.

Saturday night, a prime suspect in the Lawrence slaying shot himself to death with a .38-caliber pistol, just after police stopped him on a highway near Kensington. The suspect was 36-year-old Charles Irwin Curtis of Kensington who was described by police as having been a former "good friend" of Miss Lawrence. A few days before her death, Miss Lawrence had complained to police that a man was annoying her. After the shooting, a 13-state alarm was broadcast for Curtis.

Montgomery County police said that after Curtis' car had been stopped, an officer approached the car to question the driver. As the policeman approached, Curtis fired a gun at himself. Ballistics tests were expected to show whether the same pistol was used in killing Miss Lawrence.

In Baltimore County, police reported they were looking for a suspect in the murder Friday of 62-year-old Mrs. Miriam Vera Binderim. Mrs. Binderim's beaten and strangled body was found in her car in a Towson, Md. parking lot. Police said robbery was an apparent motive. Mrs. Binderim had lived alone.

Report Oil Strike

MOGADISCIO, Somalia (UPI)—U. S. engineers have struck oil in Somalia, informed sources here said Sunday.

They said the strike was reported at Coriolei, about 74 miles from Mogadiscio by drilling teams of the Sinclair Oil Company of New York.

The Mackinac bridge is the longest single suspension span in the world. Towering 552 feet in the air, this engineering masterpiece extends its five-mile length across the waters of the Straits of Mackinac from Mackinaw City to the south to St. Ignace on the north.

WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠10 6 ♥Q 9 6 5 4 ♦6 ♣A J 9 5 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♦	Pass	Pass
2 ♥	3 ♦	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. A single raise would not do justice to the hand and, even if partner has a mild rebid, you should have a good play for 10 tricks.

Q. 2—Partner opens with one spade, and you hold:

♠Q J 7 5 3 ♥6 2 ♦K 9 5 ♣A 10 3

What is your response?

A.—There is no satisfactory bid with this hand. It is too good for two spades and not good enough for a jump to three, which guarantees game. Nor is it the proper type for a jump to four. The best bet is to make a temporary bid of two clubs, intending to give a spade raise on the next round.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠J 8 3 ♠A 2 ♦K 7 5 3 ♣Q 9 6 3

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	4 ♠	?

What do you bid?

A.—With a likelihood that you can win two tricks defensively, the indicated procedure is a penalty double. There would be no justification for a bid of four spades, which would be a shot in the dark. If partner's hand is unbalanced and contains a long spade suit, he need not stand for the double. He can decide to go on to game in spades.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠K 8 6 ♥Q 10 5 4 ♦K 8 3 2 ♣4 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—One no trump. While partner's rebid is by no means forcing, another bid is recommended just in case he has a pretty good hand. Game is still possible if he had about 18 points. The one no trump rebid in this case does not show substantial values and can be made with as little as eight or nine high card points.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠A Q 10 ♥A K J 10 6 2 ♦5 2 ♣Q J

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	6 NT	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—A grand slam bid is clearly indicated. Partner has contracted for a small slam on the basis of a mere opening bid from you with only the added information that you have a rebiddable heart suit. As far as high cards are concerned, he could not count on you for more than 13 points. He therefore must have 20. Inasmuch as you have 17, you know that you have the necessary 37, together with a good six card suit.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠8 7 2 ♥J 8 6 ♦A 10 6 5 4 ♣8 5

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
2 NT	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. You fully exhausted your values when you responded with one diamond. If this were all partner needed to produce a game, he would have been in position to jump to three no trump instead of only two.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠Q J 5 ♥A J 7 6 2 ♦9 6 2 ♣5 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—A return to two diamonds is clearly indicated. There is no justification for a bid of two no trump merely to describe a spade stopper. Such a rebid by responder should be based on a stronger holding. If opener is unable to take further action after your return to two diamonds, you may be sure you are not missing a game.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠K 9 ♥A Q 7 ♦A J 8 4 ♣A 9 7 6

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	1 NT	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—That East has dragged a red herring across the scene has just become apparent. In view of the fact that North has sufficient high card strength to justify a jump shift, it is barely possible that East may have stretched the truth. In an effort to shed more light on the situation and to expose the gay deceiver, a cue bid of three hearts is recommended with the intention of supporting clubs vigorously on the next round.

Smallpox Kills 142

WONOGIRI, Indonesia (UPI)—Health officials said Sunday that a smallpox edpidemic in and around this Java island city has caused 142 deaths.

The entire Wonogiri area, 40 miles southeast of Jogjakarata, has been quarantined. Some 2,520 persons have become ill with the disease since the epidemic broke out last December, officials said.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Watch For Style-Harbinger Of Spring — '61

Quite like the crocus, signs of spring crop up these days in window - dressing across the country. They should be easy for you to spot, if you borrow the attitude of spring itself— look for the things that are lively and new and different. Put them on—and see if they "grow" on you.

The collar is one clue to track down. Or, more properly, you should track the LACK of a collar. For this is one of spring-61's daring diversions—collarless fashions in dresses, coats and suits. That doesn't mean that every little-plain-round-neckline is NEW. On the contrary, even collarless fashions express "collar interest."

There will be the broad upstanding cuff, the wide draped cowl, boat, crew and choker necklines, mandarin edging, ties and bows. These are collars that won't look like collars, especially captivating in coats cut with cape-flare and shoulder-emphasis. I call it high-fashion elegance — and, at last, beauty-on-a-budget can buy it!

Now, which one of you should be first to aim your earlybird stylewatching at stand-up collars and cowls? The lady who needs to balance a scant top with a generous bottom. This is also the gal who has been ever so patient with the "natural shoulder" for ever so long, even though it may have caused her to resemble a natural triangle in so many costumes. Now, wide bodice lines break through that bottleneck created by a small bustline and a narrow upper frame.

Another clue—pink! And this is no red herring! This is the pink portrayed in strawberry ice cream; this is pink when it's shocking and pink when it's peachy, and it's in all the pinks leading a long parade of fruit-and-vegetable shades variously dubbed "hot" or "dazzling" or "vibrant." This pink is to put with something dark . . in a coat that will create SHOCK over a quiet dress . . . or in an electrifying dress that will penetrate past a dark coat.

Who's for pink? What woman isn't? Pink is for girls, all ages, all stages, all colorings . even redheads. Pink is perfect for pale or sallow complexions. Make something pink, in your spring wardrobe.

Third clue, knits. Amazing knits, crafted from unusual blends in cotton, rayon, wool and synthetics, in bold and colorful designs and texture-patterns. Now wear year-round wardrobe staples, knits are so cunningly cut, they suit most silhouettes.

Do you dare to wear a knit? Why not?— if you wear the right foundation garments. Even very slender women should gird themselves against revealing rolls, bumps, angles and bulges.

The long-line foundation separates are ideal for knit pants as well as skirts. A full-bodice bra will smooth away that spare tire and define your waistline nicely, while a knee-length panty girdle controls and evens the line along hip and thigh.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Eva Marie Saint has chosen "Scandalous," a 10-letter word, for her debut into the independent production field. This is a story of famed novelist George Sand who scandalized 19th Century Europe with her love affairs, male attire and cigar smoking. Whether or not she ever landed on the front pages with a four letter word hasn't been historical-noted.

Her first decision as boss of her own Mandeville Production was finalized by Eva Marie when she assigned the script writing job on "Scandalous" to Edward Anhalt. The shooting date will be later summer because Eva Marie has a comedy, one she'd like to do first, with Paul Newman.

Eleanor Parker dropped in to see me the day she and famed artist Paul Clemens reconciled. She admitted it was all a silly quarrel that separated them, and that they loved each other very much. She said the children were crazy about him, and that he is a wonderful father and husband.

Eleanor has been sent the script of the Eva Peron story for a Broadway play, but she told me it would be difficult to move the family to New York, so she didn't feel she should accept the role. The play is called "Paulita," but it is the story of the late wife of the deposed Argentine dictator.

Out of the blue, Charlie Feldman switched his "Walk on the Wild Side" to Columbia when everyone thought he'd produce and release the Nelson Algren story through United Artists. But the deal was closed with Columbia boss Sam Briskin on Thursday—and with this settled, comes more news.

Jane Fonda leaves her Broadway show "Invitation to a March" to report by mid-March to play the 17-year-old girl of the streets. Capucine has already been announced for "Wild Side" with Eddie Dymtryk directing. Jane hasn't made a movie since "Tall Story" for Warners last year.

Anthony Quinn handed me a laugh I could use when he called from New York after the matinee of "Becket" to say I was wrong in thinking that Tony Franciosa is the only actor who has ever gone directly from a movie with Gina Lollobrigida to one with Sophia Loren.

Said my friend Mr. Quinn, "I did 'Hunchback of Notre Dame' with Gina and followed it with 'Heller in Pink Tights' with Sophia. And then I went right into 'Wild is the Wind' with Anna Magnani"—and I think Tony added, "It ain't easy."

The citizenry of Sacramento hasn't had so much fun in years since practically the whole town has cheerfully pitched in to play "extra" with Dean Martin and Susan Hayward in "Ada."

Today Susan (playing a lady politico who gets her shiftless husband into the governor's chair) was doing a scene in which she says to 200 people gathered around the Capitol, "—and now let me introduce your new governor," pushing Dean into the foreground.

So who walks right into the close-up? Gov. "Pat" Brown, of the state of California, innocently on his way to his office.

Walter Reade, Jr., who's becoming one of the industry success stories, paid me a visit when he was in Hollywood. I asked him if his operations were similar to those of Joe Levine.

He said, "Not at all. Joe is a great showman but his methods and mine differ. Joe does a saturation booking of his productions, and I think the best way to launch a big type of motion picture is to try to find the best way to show it." Well, both men have done all right.

Speaking of Joe, he sends me a wire that he's signed a deal with Jack Warner to release "The Fabulous World of Jules Verne," and a circus picture called "Bimbo the Great." The Verne picture is filmed in a new process called mystimation and won the grand prize at the Brussels Film Festival.

To Sign Pact

SEOUL, Korea (UPI)—The United States will sign a new economic aid pact with the Korean government Monday, authoritative sources reported Sunday.

The signing was reported to have been postponed twice. Informants said the U. S. has now accepted the Korean view that private American firms here with aid program contracts should not be granted tax exemption, a key point in the negotiations.

Deemed Unacceptable

MADRID (UPI) — Informed sources said Sunday that Spain's Roman Catholic bishops consider one article of the government's proposed new press law to be "unacceptable," and "incompatible with the teachings of the church."

The article would classify as an "offense" all attacks made in the press against persons in the armed forces and all levels of the government, sources said.

Strange Position For Mr. Mitchell

Politics makes tough dilemmas, as well as strange bedfollows. Witness the one confronting James P. Mitchell, Secretary of Labor in the Eisenhower administration.

Mitchell is chairman of a Presidential commission established by the executive order of his former boss on December 22 to draft a long-term formula for labor peace on the railroads and on harbor tugs. Mitchell, after accepting assignment, announced on January 14 his intention to seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination in his home state of New Jersey.

Out of this, it appears, a possible conflict of interest arises. At least, Daniel P. Loomis, president of the Association of American Railroads, is supposed to have suggested at a mid-January private dinner in Washington that the full panel on railroad peace consider whether the rigors of campaigning would leave Mitchell enough time and detachment for his commission duties.

No one wants to get rid of Mitchell. Loomis made it clear that management did not question Mitchell's integrity and impartiality.

Not only the rail unions but Mitchell's successor in the Labor Department, Arthur J. Goldberg, have expressed complete confidence in his ability to combine the political and semi-judicial roles without favor. On hearing that the question had been raised, Goldberg pointed out that the 11 rail and three marine unions had been aware of Mitchell's candidacy when they agreed to accept the commission report.

Actually, both sides have reason to be grateful to Mitchell, for it was he who got management and labor together and worked out the Oct. 18 agreement to open up the long-standing dispute over work rules—"featherbedding" in managementese—to objective public study.

These Days

Freedom To Know

The Eisenhower Administration has generally taken advantage of its Executive Prerogative to suppress such information as it did not desire Congress or the people to have. Some such information may be of so delicate a nature as to warrant temporary suppression but there can be no reason why the Teheran papers have not yet been published. Parts of the Yalta and Malta documentation have been made available in a volume which is difficult to read and analyze, but Teheran, which precedes Yalta, has been kept under cover, perhaps in the hope that it will be forgotten.

In the historic quarrel between President Eisenhower and Senator Joseph McCarthy, Executive Prerogative loomed large. McCarthy could have managed to overcome Presidential opposition had he agreed to the proposition that all sessions of his committee be executive, which means sub-rosa, and that he then submit the transcript of the record to the White House for review and decision. The question was discussed at great length and I was present at some of the discussions. The central argument against the proposition was that Congress could not turn over to the President its authority to investigate.

President Kennedy, in his State of the Union Message apparently repudiates the Eisenhower policy of secrecy. He said:

> "... For my part, I shall withhold from neither the Congress nor the people any fact or report, past, present or future, which is necessary for a free and informed judgment of our conduct and hazards. I shall neither shift the burden of executive decisions to the Congress, nor avoid responsibility for the outcome of those decisions."

From this language it is to be accepted that the Teheran papers will be made available so that it is possible to understand exactly what happened in Eastern Europe at the end of the war and why the termination of World War II, now 15 years delayed, has become so complicated. It is at Teheran that great decisions were made.

Currently, the Eastland Committee investigation concerning Cuba, which has been going on for some weeks, mostly in executive session, will undoubtedly proceed full force until the facts are available and Congress will have sufficient data to act intelligently on such decisions as it may have to make.

The possibility of the reorganization of the procedures in the State Department may result from the Cuban situation if it is established, as it may be, that decisions are made at too low a level which may be costly to the country.

It is true that not everything between governments can be made public because each side has the right to decide what it wishes to do about questions in which it is involved. Furthermore, as long as we are in the Cold War, which is war by other than usual means, it may be necessary to keep strategic data and certainly tactical data secret to avoid aiding the enemy. But such matters should be based upon policy laid down at a high level, not by every bureaucratic Tom, Dick and Harry whose rubber stamp reads "Secret."

> If this interpretation of President Kennedy's purpose is correct, Congressional committees will no longer fail in their investigations because they are unable to obtain data already in the possession of the Executive. Of course, the FBI and the CIA have to be excluded from this generalization as it is impossible for such organizations to function at all if their green files are available to untrained eyes. On the other hand, the Kefauver Committee which is often accused of having been noisy and futile at times lacked the data which could have made its sessions significant.

The right to know, however, is not limited to Congressional committees. In recent years, the press has suffered from bureaucratic suppression of the news. Often what has been suppressed had to be dug out and reported as rumors and anonymous leaks. Such reporting is undignified and should be unnecessary.

The press is representative of the people in their right to know what their government is doing. The formal press conference is insufficient for that. Too few questions are asked and although President Kennedy made a good impression as an answer man, it is often necessary to go to the expert, to the man who is handling a problem, to get the background from him. The press should take full advantage of President Kennedy's voluntary offer to recognize the Right to Know.

'I Keep Hearing Noises'

Kennedy Focuses Attention On Economic Ills

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — President Kennedy's latest message to Congress on the economic situation is in some respects the most important he has yet delivered. For it affords an insight into the kind of policies he intends to sponsor in the field of business.

The first part of the message is mostly theory. Who knows, for instance, what the national growth might have been in the last few years if the economy had realized its "possible" expansion? Who can say just why there has been "a failure to use our full capacity"? Mr. Kennedy says, for instance, that corporate profits "could have been 5 billion dollars higher" than they were in 1960. But he doesn't tell how this could have been done in the face of declining business due to the after-effects of the steel strike.

In general terms, the President proposes now "to expand the nation's investments in physical and human resources, and in science and technology."

This is a worthy ideal, but the question of just how to do it isn't covered in the message. There is one point, however, which may afford a clue. The President, for instance, says pointedly that "long-term interest rates should decline" and that "a further decline in short-term interest rates, under present conditions, would lead to a further outflow of funds abroad."

This means in its simplest form that Mr. Kennedy recognizes how much the international economy has become interwoven with the national economy and that artificially to depress interest rates within the United States might be good politics in one sense but can wreck the gold position of America by forcing foreign holders of money to transfer their funds to Europe, where they'll get higher interest rates.

Although the message contains many proposals for "pump priming" which are reminiscent of the blunders of New Deal days, there are certain items suggested that are necessary to alleviate immediate distress which are commendable.

It is in the long-range category — what shall be done to lift the economy out of its present downturn — that the President has made a very significant suggestion. He has not described in detail his recommendation for what are termed "special tax incentives" to bring about "expansion and modernization of the nation's productive plant," but the fact that he recommends a modification of the tax laws to provide those "incentives for investment in plant and equipment" is highly important.

Most interesting of all, however, is the carefully phrased statement of the President about inflation and price stability. He says:

"Government can help further by encouraging labor and management to find ways to smooth the adjustment to technological change . . .

"Accordingly, I shall issue an executive order establishing the President's Advisory Committee on labor-management policy, with members drawn from labor, management, and the public.

"The committee is directed to advise the President with respect to actions that may be taken by labor, management, and the public which will promote free and responsible collective bargaining, industrial peace, sound wage policies, sound price policies and stability, a higher standard of living, increased productivity, and America's competitive position in world markets . . .

"I look to the committee to make an important contribution to labor - management relations and an understanding of their importance to the stability of prices and the health of the economy . . .

"All of us must now be conscious of the need for policies that enable American goods to compete successfully with foreign goods. We cannot afford unsound wage and price movements which push up costs, weaken our international competitive position, restrict job opportunities, and jeopardize the health of our domestic economy . . .

"Neither will we seek to buy short-run economic gains by paying the price of excessive increases in the cost of living. Always a cruel tax upon the weak, inflation is now the certain road to a balance of payments crisis and the disruption of the international economy of the western world."

Does all this mean that irresponsibility in labor unions is at last to be tackled? The steel strike, with its dislocation of inventories, was one of the major causes of the present recession, and yet labor leaders have shown no sign of abating their demand to get all they can irrespective of the unemployment caused in their own and other industries. A labor-management committee at the President's elbow is at least a start in the right direction. For certainly publicity of the real facts can do more than wage-price control itself to avert crises and stop economic recessions.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

CURBED INFLATION? — The initial bloom of incumbency is over and the Kennedy administration is settling in for the long, hard pull that lies ahead.

The transition from the Eisenhower administration—smoothest in the nation's history—has been accomplished. The new "team" has learned where the files are, which buzzers to press, which telephones to use. Soon, the nation will begin to learn the course toward the "New Frontier."

Already, President John F. Kennedy has made one basic decision—to tolerate an unbalanced budget for the first, and probably the second year of his administration. This decision has been transmitted to his top Cabinet and White House echelon.

Of necessity, this implies a measure of inflation. The remaining question is how much. Under prevailing conditions, government controls appear to be the only effective way to minimize a newly threatening wage-price spiral.

There are abundant signs that Kennedy will not hesitate to seek controls necessary to hold inflation to a "little," rather than permit the kind of runaway situation that occurred at the end of World War II.

The areas of controls which are being seriously examined include a wage-price formula as well as a number of measures to check the outward flow of American dollars. There is no thought of immediate, across-the-board application of these controls, but rather selective application as conditions appear to warrant.

However, one thing is certain, the Kennedy administration is determined to increase the nation's economic growth rate, and will not be forestalled either by the threat of inflation, or the outflow of gold.

Think Twice Before Trying 900-Calorie Diet

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The 900 calorie weight control formulas contain all the known essential nutrients. Some are made from nonfat whole milk solids plus soya flour, vegetable oils, starch, yeast, minerals, vitamins, and flavoring.

Metrecal, the original, now has comparable national competitors such as Quota and MinVitine. These formulas are food products, but they should be used with caution and judgment. They are well tolerated over short periods or when used with one well balanced meal at noon or in the evening.

Many authorities believe these preparations are not for the long haul. After all, the gastrointestinal tract from one end to the other was designed to handle solids as well as liquids, including nutriments in their natural state. Certain foods stimulate digestants, for example; others act as catalysts to help absorb vitamins. In some instances, the colon rebels against this type of formula feeding; it may clamp down and cause constipation or open up, producing diarrhea.

Furthermore, on 900 calories daily the body is in a negative caloric balance and is working on its reserves. There is no harm in this, provided it is not carried to extremes.

A crash diet leading to rapid loss of five to six pounds does no harm, but shedding many pounds over a period of weeks or months is bound to end in trouble. We suggest a loss of no more than one or two pounds a week by this method, except under special situations.

But the worst feature of the 900 calorie regimen is that it does not teach the individual to acquire the type of eating habits that will keep him slender after reaching a normal weight. This is the secret of success in treating obesity. Reducing poundage is only half the battle; maintaining a good figure is the main objective and the real reason why the individual went on a slimming program originally.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

If you're not convinced that this is an age of specialization, consider the case of an airline that has trained an ordinary white chicken to sit on top of elephants in flight. That's right: I said elephants in flight. It was discovered that an elephant tends to get a bit nervous aboard a moving plane, but that a chicken on its back, for some weird reason, appears to exert a soothing influence. The airline's chicken, trained for this purpose, bears the appropriate name of "Elephant Girl."

Democrat Judge To Pass Sentence In Antitrust Cases Brought By GOP

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The political eyes of the nation may be on Washington, but the eyes of big business to day will be on Philadelphia where U.S. District Judge J. Cullen Ganey will sentence the most powerful companies in the electrical industry for conspiracy to violate the antitrust laws.

It's the biggest crackdown the Justice Department has ever brought against big business, and it was brought by a Republican Justice Department, supposedly friendly to big business. The sentence will be handed down by a Democratic judge.

The 29 companies and 44 company officials who will line up before Judge Ganey include General Electric, Westinghouse, Allis-Chalmers, Worthington, Federal Pacific Electric, and practically every manufacturer of heavy electrical equipment. Nineteen companies have pleaded guilty to rigging prices, thus defrauding the government and public utilities in the purchase of eight billion dollars worth of electrical equipment.

Most significant aspect of this case is that the Republican Justice Department refused to let the moguls of the electrical industry plead nolo contendere — or "no contest." Attorney General Bill Rogers made a special trip to Philadelphia to appeal to Judge Ganey to reject nolo pleas.

In the past, Rogers argued, antitrust violators have escaped heavy punishment by entering "no defense" pleas and throwing themselves on the mercy of the court. This time, he said, they must be required to plead guilty or go to trial.

If they are found guilty they can be sued for damages by those they have defrauded. In other words, this trial could start off a whole series of civil suits against the big electrical companies running into millions — all because Attorney General Rogers and his live-wire assistant, Robert Bicks, were tough.

Note—Paradoxical fact is that many of these electrical companies had been enthusiastic boosters for Eisenhower. Further paradoxical fact is that the new Attorney General, Bobby Kennedy, has now dropped trust-busting Bob Bicks.

Sherlock Holmes Atmosphere

The manner in which the moguls of the electrical world conspired to fix prices reads like a detective story. They were careful never to write letters on company stationery, never leave memos in company files, never meet in their offices, never use their office phones. Letters, when written, were on plain or hotel stationery, were addressed to homes and carried no return addresses.

In carving up the switchgear business of the United States, the seven companies that participated did not even use their company names. They referred to each other as "Joe No. 1," "Bill No. 2," etc.

The meetings were held in the Traymore Hotel in Atlantic City, the Airport Hotel in Pittsburgh, the Homested in Hot Springs, Va., the Barclay in New York. There were no meetings in the Mayflower in Washington, perhaps the only hotel reported in a senate investigation as having wire-taps in the rooms (of Howard Hughes executives).

General Electric, which has now pleaded guilty, was especially anxious not to get caught, and at one meeting at Camp Keystone, near North Bay, Ontario, the GE representative, W. F. Oswalt, general manager of the Switchgear and Control Division, would not attend the meeting with other electrical moguls. He rented a cabin on the island some distance off.

The other conspirators had to keep running back and forth to check the prices to be agreed upon and the amount of business each company was to get. Oswalt, though remaining aloof, sent word to hike prices by 10 per cent, thus increasing inflation.

Oswalt has now pleaded guilty.

"Phase Of The Moon"

In fixing prices for the sale of switchgears to private utility companies, a system was devised called "phase of the moon," by which electrical companies got together secretly every quarter to see how much business they had to divide up for the next "phase of the moon" or quarter.

They actually worked out a chart with th amount of business allocated to each company in each quarter. If one company got too much in the first "phase of the moon" it was deducted in the next.

Big companies like GE got the biggest percentage — 45 per cent of the government circuit-breaker business, Westinghouse 35 per per cent, Allis-Chalmers 10 per cent, and so on.

It was a wonderful racket for about eight years and just as monopolistic as the communist system we are supposed to be competing with.

That's why the eyes of the business world will be on Judge Ganey in Philadelphia today.

Under The Dome

GOP Reps. James Van Zandt and John Saylor of Pennsylvania have distressed areas in their districts, promised voters in the last campaign that they would vigorously support the distressed areas bill. Yet both voted to continue Rules Committee stalling against distressed areas legislation . . . Another Pennsylvania Republican with a partly "distressed" district, Rep. Carroll Kearns, also reneged on a promise to labor leaders to support the rules reform . . . Sam Rayburn shook his head in angry bewilderment when Rep. Frank Boykin of Alabama voted against him. Four days before, Boykin had assured the speaker: "Don't worry, Sam. I'll work it out so I can vote for you." . . . Before the vote, GOP Leader Charles Halleck buttonholed GOP Rep. Frank Osmers of New Jersey, urging him to oppose the rules reform. "Let's not be half Republican and half Democrat." Osmers, however, voted against Halleck. 'How can you talk like that, Charlie, when you are one of the architects of the Republican - Southern Dixiecrat Coalition," inquired the New Jersey Republican.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

MIAMI, Fla. — He is bent over the sink, washing the breakfast dishes. This gives me time to write. My father has been here a week. For a proper appreciation of what has happened, one must recognize that he is 77, has an auricular fibrillation, edema of lungs and ankles, his feet shuffle slowly, his head is inclined, hair white, teeth new, eyes blue and twinkling, manner courtly and diplomatic.

When my mother died, over three years ago, John M. Bishop Sr. retired to his room in my sister's house. He seldom came out. The man who sits alone is in poor company. He built up nervousness, fears and, in effect, marked time. Once, he had been a big solid man, a handsome, second-generation Irishman in the uniform of a police lieutenant. He weighed 254. Now he was a shrunken, skinny man of 139, watching the clock and waiting for the hour to take the next pill.

He was terrified of planes, afraid of trains, nervous in automobiles. I goaded him into leaving the room. My brother John shoved him on the train at Newark, New Jersey, and I met him the next day at Flagler Street and yanked him off. I had no intention of babying him. I said: "If it is God's will that you have to go, let Him take you in bright sunshine rather than in that stuffy room."

Dad agreed. His leg muscles were so flabby it hurt to walk more than a hundred yards. The first night, I took him to the Jai-Alai games. When he got back to the Key Biscayne Hotel, he said he couldn't sleep without his pill. He was gone before he could reach for it. The next day, I asked him to play nine holes on a pitch and putt course.

"Oh no," he said. Golf was 20 years behind him. I gave him an eight iron and a putter and dragged him out. He played and shot 44. The next morning, he was out by himself and shot 34. His snowy skin got red, then deep tan. We went everywhere together, even when I was working on a column. We toured Miami Beach at night, just to see the lights.

We went to George Baker's home for dinner. Dad was afraid that it would be too fashionable for him. He met an airline stewardess named Beverly, reached for the roast beef and her at the same time and, in an hour, he had promised to make his first flight on her plane. John was moving fast.

They came over to my table. He had his arm around her. Beverly said: "Mr. Bishop, I have something important to say to you." I looked up and said: "No matter what you have to say, I'm not going to learn to call you mother." It wasn't that, she said. John had promised to make a jet flight to New York.

Sunday we went deep sea fishing on the Elkam II. My father is afraid of the sea. He relaxed, held his face to the warm sun, ate as though food had been outlawed, and asked the captain numerous questions about the gulf stream. Monday, he played 18 holes of golf and drove to Hialeah to visit Frank and Gail Gerace. He fell asleep watching television.

Tuesday we went Hialeah. He knew nothing of the horses, but would bet the whole wad—$2— on anything Bill Hartack was riding. He won $7, and got back to the hotel in time for a corned beef and cabbage dinner. He was now averaging at least two miles a day on his feet. The pain in the calf muscles was almost gone.

Wednesday, he visited the Sequarium, watched the porpoises spring out of the blue water, saw a 300 year old turtle, and murmured: "My friend, you've got me by a few years." At the airport, Dymond of National put my father on a Lockheed Electra simulator (a real flight deck of a plane, built in a big room) and took him down an imaginary runway and up to 9,000 feet, making twists and turns, through an electric storm with fake lighting on the front windows, and down to a safe landing.

"If that's all there is to it," Dad said. "I'll change my mind. I'll fly." We'll see. The next day, Tom Ferris and I played 18 holes at Key Colony. Dad drove the electric cart. He had never been in one. Later he went to Jordan—Marsh, bought some wild sports shirts and a straw hat with a narrow beatnik brim, and said: "What's next on the agenda?"

He visited Dr. J. V. Hankwerker, accompanied by a note from his northern doctor. Hankwerker examined the tricky heart, searched for fluid in lungs and ankles. The doctor said: "He's in good shape. Heart is all right and no fluid. He's dry as a bone."

Now he is washing the morning dishes. I'm trying to write and he wants to know "What's next?" Last night, we stood along the edge of the sea, looking at the little blue pinholes in the sky.

"This," he said solemnly, "is the closest I expect to get to heaven."...

West Virginia Frosh Play At Potomac State Tonight

Morgantown Quint Owns 8-1 Record

Bill Maphis With Visitors; Salem To Host Bobcats

Bill Maphis, who sparked Romney High School to the West Virginia Class AA basketball championship last season and was the "big gun" for Coach Clyde Green's Pioneers who wound up the 1959-60 campaign with a 27-0 record, will appear in the lineup of the West Virginia University Freshmen when they invade Keyser tonight to do battle with Coach Dana "Horse" Lough's Potomac State College Catamounts at 8 o'clock.

Bill Maphis

Frosh Win 8 of 9 Games

Coach Quentin Barnette's Little Mountaineers come to Keyser with an 8-1 record, which includes a 77-56 victory over Potomac State. Their only setback came at the hands of the Pitt Freshmen.

The other wins were scored at the expense of West Virginia Wesleyan Jayvees, Fairmont State Jayvees, twice, and the freshmen teams of Richmond, Ohio University, Westminster and Virginia Tech.

Other starters of the freshmen team in addition to Maphis, who scored 831 points in his senior year at Romney, and collected 2,504 points in 92 games for an average of 27.2 during his four-year high school career, are Tom Lowry, 6-foot-8 center from Madison, Ohio, who is the quint's high average player; Bob Camp, of Stonewall Jackson High, Charleston; Jaye Deitz, of South Charleston, and Mike Barger, of Dunbar.

Potomac State will be engaging in its 18th game of the campaign. The Catamounts own an 11-8 record and won their last three outings against Shenandoah, Davis & Elkins and Johnstown, Pa., Center.

Bobcats Visit Salem

In another collegiate contest on tap for tonight, Frostburg State Teachers face Salem College at Salem, W. Va. The Bobcats will be playing their 15th game of the season. They've won five games and lost nine.

Moorefield High School goes to Circleville to battle the Circleville High Indians tonight while Bayard High School invades Preston County to play Tunnelton High School.

Seek 13th Straight

Undefeated Martinsburg High School will be gunning for its 13th victory tonight when it plays Westminster High School's Owls in a C.V.A. League game at Martinsburg.

SS. Peter & Paul Triumphs In Double Overtime, 41-39

Turns Back Gaels, St. Michael's And St. Peter's Score

UMPS WON'T LIKE IT—One of the St. Louis Cardinals' outfielders, Charley James (right), gets help from Professor Robert Ozment of Washington U., St. Louis, on an electronic computer. James has developed an electronic umpire, but it will be several years before it is tried out.

A field goal by Kerry Kelly on the first play of a "sudden death" double overtime period enabled SS. Peter & Paul to gain a 41-39 decision over St. Mary's Gaels in a Catholic Youth Basketball League thriller yesterday at SS. Peter & Paul gymnasium.

Coach Bob Mattingly's quint trailed as much as 15 points in the third quarter before it caught fire and staged a sensational last ditch rally to tie the score at 37-37 as the regulation game ended. SS. Peter & Paul was trailing by six points with two minutes to go when Dave Saveleski, Marty Mohler and Bernie Morrissey connected for field goals that sent the game into overtime.

In the first extra period Kelly meshed two foul shots for SS. Peter & Paul and Wolfe scored a field goal for the Gaels to make it 39-all. In the second overtime stanza, Kelly scored following the tip-off play.

Kelly paced the winners with 10 points, Larry Becker collected nine and Saveleski and Morrissey garnered eight each. Jim Hudson headed St. Mary's with 18 tallies.

St. Michael's Wins

St. Michael's remained tied with SS. Peter & Paul for first place in the second half championship race by downing St. Patrick's of Cumberland, 56-32.

The Frostburg quint piled up a 16-2 lead at the quarter and held the long end of a 36-7 score at intermission.

Bobby Seibert slammed in 20 points to lead St. Michael's while Timmy Byrne's 12 points was high for St. Patrick's.

St. Peter's of Westernport avenged two earlier defeats by walloping St. Patrick's of Mt. Savage to the tune of 56-27.

Patterson, Ryan Get 48

Larry Patterson and Pat Ryan racked up 48 of the winners' 56 tallies. Patterson scored 28 points on 12 field goals and 4-8 fouls while Ryan slammed in ten field goals. John Moran collected 13 points for Mt. Savage.

St. Peter's held a 5-point lead at halftime and outscored Mt. Savage 35 to 11 in the second half.

Riot Follows Hockey Game

Police Swing Clubs In Melee At Toledo

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Some 200 to 300 hockey fans rioted late Sunday at the end of the St. Paul Saints 6-5 win over the Toledo Mercuries when Jacque Marcotte, visiting goalie, protested the manner in which a Merks goal was scored.

A woman was jostled and shaken up before she fainted, but officials said she and everybody else apparently escaped injury in the melee which took 13 extra police to quell.

When Marcotte skated to the scoring line to register his protest, one of the 1,672 fans at the game started harassing him. The goalie swung his stick back at the fan, setting off the fighting where fans threw chairs and St. Paul players batted back with their sticks.

Police at the sports arena were unable to restore order, so a radio call for help brought four crews of extra patrolmen and five command officers to the scene with clubs swinging so the visiting team move toward the locker room. A police flying wedge escorted the Saints through the blockade of fans.

Police also had to escort the St. Paul team to a downtown hotel because some fans waited outside the arena. The Saints are to practice on the ice here Monday and Tuesday before moving on.

Waynesboro Defeats YMCA Varsity, 99-91

Charley McCullough scored 33 points Saturday night as the Cumberland YMCA varsity quint dropped a 99-91 decision to the Waynesboro YMCA at Waynesboro, Pa.

The Pennsylvanians won here earlier in the season by the score of 85-82.

Junior O'Neal scored 26 points for the losers. Hartle and E. Shade with 26 and 20 points, respectively, led the Waynesboro scorers.

West Virginia Board Fails To Rule On All-Star Games

Decision Is Left Up To Graduates

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia's graduating scholastic football and basketball players are going to have to make their own decision on whether to participate in all-star games following their graduation.

The Board of Appeals of the State Secondary Activities Commission (SSAC) concluded a two-day meeting here Sunday with the announcement that it "neither approves nor disapproves" participation in such games.

The board had been asked to take a position on the matter since the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) ruled that a high school athlete will be denied one year of college eligibility at member schools for participation in all-star games not sanctioned by such organizations as the SSAC.

Endorses NCAA Action

The NCAA action also received the strong endorsement of the National Federation of High School Athletic Associations.

Executive Secretary W. Gordon Eismon pointed out Sunday that constitutional by-laws of the SSAC provide for regulation of athletic activities by the board for bona-fide members of student bodies in member schools only.

Consequently the board of appeals, having no jurisdiction over the participation in athletics by graduates of member schools, neither approves nor disapproves participation of graduates in all-star contests," Eismon said.

Disturbances Reported

The board also took no action on reports of disturbances caused by both student spectators and players at some football and basketball games in the state.

The Mountain State currently has five all-star football games, plus several similar basketball affairs. The football games are at Wheeling, Parkersburg, Bluefield, Williamson and Charleston.

Critics of the games maintain that participants leave themselves open to injuries due to lack of proper supervision. Some also feel that too much of the money realized from such games goes into the hands of sponsors.

Add Weight Classes

The board also added two new weight classes in wrestling for the 1961-62 season. Coaches had recommended that 95 and 177 pound classes be added and the request was approved.

The board will hold its next meeting March 15 in Huntington, the day before the State High School Basketball Tournament opens there.

West Virginia Plays In Garden Thursday Night

Seeks 17th Victory Over NYU's Violets

By JERRY GOULD

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI)—If the injured recover as quickly as their teammates did Saturday in Charleston, West Virginia University's basketball team can add two more victories to its growing string this week.

Coach George King said he felt the five-days of rest between the thrilling 86-78 victory over North Carolina State and the Thursday tussle with New York University in Madison Square Garden would help the healing process.

Lee Turns Ankle

Co-captain Lee Patrone turned an ankle in the first hlaf and sat out the second before some 5,700 fans who crowded their way into Charleston's Civic Center.

Kenny Ward, valuable "sixth" man from Shady Spring, sustained a nasty leg bruise, cut mouth and some chipped teeth in a Friday practice session collision with Joe Posch. He saw no action against N. C. State.

Despite this handicap, the Mountaineers outscored the Wolfpack 35-15 in the final 11 minutes 45 seconds for their 16th victory in 19 starts and 14th in their last 15 games.

West Virginia will face New York University in the second game of a double-header attraction. The first contest pairs Seton Hall and Dayton.

The Violets have only a so-so 7-7 record this season under the veteran Lou Rossini.

Play Spiders Saturday

After their annual trip to New York, the Mountaineers travel to Richmond, Va., Saturday night to play the Richmond Spiders, a team they squeezed past 75-72 last Dec. 13 here.

Goldsmith Takes Stock Car Race

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Paul Goldsmith of St. Clair Shores, Mich., led most of the way and won the first annual USAC 100-mile Jimmy Bryan Memorial stock car race at the Fairground.

The nation's No. 2 stock car driver last year, Goldsmith made a virtual sweep with his 1960 Pontiac, picking up $1,000 in first prize and $500 in supplemental lap awards.

His time was 1:14.19. He also won the pole position with a :41.37 on the one-mile track.

Finishing second in a 1970 Ford was John Rostek of Fort Collins, Colo., with Elmer Musgrave of Chicago third in a 1961 Ford.

Marine Corporals Bobsled Winners

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Marine Cpls. Gary Sheffield and Jerry Tennant, members of the No. 1 U.S. four-man bobsled team won the right Sunday to represent the United States as the No. 1 team in the two-man world championships.

Sheffield, of Lake Placid, and Tennant, of Princeton, W. Va., finished third in the National AAU two-man race after winning the Adirondack AAU event last week.

Their total of eight points in the two races gave them the designation of No. 1 team for the world championships, which begin next weekend.

St. Paul Ski Jump Won By Japanese

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Kiyotaka Sakai, 26-year-old mining engineer from Hokkaido, Japan, leaped 186 and 181 feet Sunday to win the St. Paul Winter Carnival ski jumping championship.

While trouble was besetting his long-jumping tour partner, Yukio Kasaya, Sakai executed a perfect first jump in his exaggerated-lean style, then protected the lead with a cautious second jump.

Bob Wedin of Iron Mountain, Mich., was second and Jerry Lewis of Duluth third in Class A.

Norway Hockey Team Surprises U.S., 4-3

OSLO (AP) — Norway, playing its best game of the season, surprised the United States 4-3 in a preworld championship ice hockey match at the Jordal Amfi Stadium Sunday night.

The Norwegian team, which lost 8-3 to Canada Tuesday, outplayed the Americans in the first period, but U.S. goaltender Larry Palmer played excellently and kept the score down.

Players, Spectators Battle At Durham

By REESE HART

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—Atlantic Coast Conference Commissioner Jim Weaver said Sunday he'll await a report from game officials before investigating the fight that erupted during the Duke-North Carolina basketball game here Saturday night.

The report is expected sometime this week, Weaver said.

Only nine seconds of the game remained when a free-for-all broke out. The players and some of the 9,000 spectators that jammed Duke Indoor Stadium were involved.

Police Restore Order

Durham Police rushed onto the court and succeeded in restoring order, but not until after many punches had been thrown. A cordon of police was around the court when play resumed.

Fourth ranked Duke went on to defeat the Tar Heels 81-77.

The flareup began when North Carolina's Larry Brown drove for a layup. Duke sophomore star Art Heyman, who scored 36 points, collided with him. They mixed it up, with players and spectators swarming onto the floor. Bedlam reigned for a minute or so.

Duke Athletic Director Eddie Cameron said, "there's no telling what would have happened if a force of police hadn't been on hand. In the past we've just had campus policemen at our basketball games. This time we had a force from downtown. We wanted to be prepared. The police did an outstanding job in breaking it up."

Cameron said no serious injuries were reported and none of the players hurt.

May Shift 2nd Game

North Carolina coach Frank McGuire said that because of the fight, the return engagement with the Blue Devils probably will be played on a neutral court. The game is scheduled for North Carolina's home court Feb. 25.

Three City League Games Set Tonight

Three City Basketball League games are on tap for tonight at Fort Hill High School gym.

Wilson Hardware Company and Roseland clash at 6:45, the Forty & Eight Club opposes Boal's Funeral Home quint at 7:45 and in the final game the Old Germans (8-0), first half champions, will do battle with the Knights of Columbus at 8:45.

The first half championship race draws to a close Thursday night.

Robinson Inks Pact

BALTIMORE (AP) — Brooks Robinson, the Baltimore Orioles' young veteran, has signed his 1961 contract for an estimated 67 per cent pay boost.

Robinson, the veteran of the Bird infield at 23, signed Saturday for an estimated $20,000. The third baseman batted .294 last season, highest among the Oriole regulars and his best mark in six full or part-time years with Baltimore.

the GREATEST! by Walter Johns

NOT TOO long ago someone nominated Juan Manuel Fangio for the world's safe driver award. He may have been the safest, too, although the world knows him as the daredevil of the road, the world's GREATEST racing driver.

The greatest sports hero of the Argentine people since Luis Angel Firpo made world headlines with his fists, Fangio, now retired, had no equal as a lead-footed automobile racer and yet, in nearly 200 road races in 23 different countries, he came out alive—and this, for sure, could qualify him for the safe driving award.

Fangio today, a millionaire they say, is writing his memoirs along with his manager, Marcello Giambertone, and the book appropriately will be called "Twenty Years of Thills."

WINNER of the world's driving championship five times, four times in six years, Juan Manuel Fangio was born June 34, 1911, at Balcarce, Argentina, the fourth child of six of an immigrant potato farmer and plasterer who migrated from Italy to Argentina.

As a schoolboy he was active as a soccer player but his main interest was automobiles, which he puttered around with while working in a garage in Buenos Aires at an early age.

He put together a stock car for his first effort and won his first race at the age of 23. He won his first world's title in 1951 and repeated four times since until he retired in October of 1958, then 47 years old.

He suffered a broken back in a race at Monza, Italy, and almost lost his life in a Buenos Aires-to-Caracas road race through the Andes. In the treacherous road race his co-driver was killed when their racing car hit a guard rail and slithered down a mountain side.

Juan Fangio

FANGIO became a news headline early in 1958 when he was abducted in Cuba by Castro rebels who were plotting against the government of Fulgencio Batista. Fangio was to have appeared in a Havana race but the race went on without him. He later was released.

He never entered the Indianapolis 500 although he did appear to register 142-miles-per-hour in time trials.

A humble man, he spent wisely and when he retired was listed as wealthy, with service stations, a movie theater and automobile dealerships.

Ohio State, Cincy, Duke Extend Winning Streaks

Tarheels, Memphis State, Southern Cal And Army Stopped

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Put the weekend down as tough on basketball winning streaks, except for Ohio State plus Duke and Cincinnati, two potential Buckeye challengers coming on like the winter wind.

While top-ranked Ohio State breezily led the advance of favorites with an 80-58 rout of Michigan for its 21st straight victory, five of the nation's gaudiest streaks were ditched—topped by fourth-ranked Duke's 81-77 snapper against fifth-ranked North Carolina. The Tar Heels had won 12 in a row.

Duke's triumph, led by sophomore Art Heyman's 36 points, sped the Blue Devils into sole possession of first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference with an 8-0 record while avenging their only loss of the season in 17 starts — 76-71 to North Carolina in the Dixie Classic final in December.

Duke's Seventh In Row

It was Duke's seventh in a row since the Tar Heel spill, and surging Cincinnati bolted to its 11th straight and 16th in 19 tries, 77-60 over sixth-ranked Iowa at Chicago Stadium. But elsewhere the big streakers went tumbling:

Eighth-ranked Southern California, the Big Five conference leader with eight straight, lost to UCLA 86-83 despite a 37-point show by John Rudometkin. The Trojans had whipped the Uclans in the first of the two-game set Friday 78-63.

Florida, erstwhile coleader of the Southeastern Conference, with seven in a row, was routed 89-68 by mediocre Kentucky. Mississippi State, winning its eighth straight, took over the undisputed SEC lead at 6-0 by thumping LSU 77-61.

Memphis State Bows

Memphis State (15-2), a prime tournament hopeful with six straight victories and 32 in a row at home, was walloped at Memphis by Dayton (12-6), 96-77.

And Army, with a nine-game burst representing its longest streak in 16 years, was knocked off 86-62 by Boston College.

Coupled with 10th-ranked Kansas State's 71-63 success over Oklahoma, and losses earlier in the week for third-ranked Bradley (to second-ranked St. Bonaventure and to Cincinnati), seventh-ranked Louisville, and ninth-ranked St. John's, it indicate another reshuffling of the nation's top ten is in order.

Bucks Play Indiana

Ohio State remains clearly at the head of the list, however, after toying with the Wolverines at Michigan — hitting 66 per cent from the field in the first half and using its regulars only 30 minutes. John Havlicek, who hit nine-for-nine in the first half, and Mel Nowell each had 18 points. All-America Jerry Lucas second 17 points and grabbed 11 rebounds for the Bucks, who play tough Indiana (10-4) at Columbus Monday night.

Heyman, contained when North Carolina beat Duke in their earlier meeting, broke loose for 24 of his 36 points in the second half—including six in a row after the Tar Heels had grabbed a 73-70 lead. The game ended in a free-for-all among players and some spectators at Durham, touched off when North Carolina's Larry Brown collided with Heyman with nine seconds remaining. Police were needed to break it up. The loss dropped NCAA — ineligible North Carolina (7-1) to third place in the ACC behind Duke (8-0) and Wake Forest (9-1), a 78-69 winner over Maryland.

Bearcats Triumph

Bob Wiesenhan's 25 points led Cincinnati, which hasn't lost since dropping a 72-53 Missouri Valley Conference decision to loop leader Bradley on Dec. 23. Bradley now is 5-1 in the MVC, with Cincinnati percentage points behind at 6-2.

Holbert Wins Florida Race

Captures 35-Lap Sports Car Event

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Bob Holbert, Warrington, Pa., won the 35-lap sports car feature at the Daytona International Speedway Sunday in a Porsche 61.

Holbert covered the distance in 1 hour, 7 minutes, 13 seconds at an average speed of 96.8 MPH. He was followed by Art Huttinger, Windemere, Fla., in a Lister-Corvette, and Chuck Cassel, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., piloting a Porsche RS 61.

The event wound up sports car activity for the Feb. 4 to Feb. 26 speed weeks.

Registration and inspection for late model stock car racing next Saturday and Sunday will take place Monday. Two 25-mile races will decide the two pole positions for the Daytona 500 on Feb. 26.

In addition the speedway next Sunday will host the first international motorcycle grand prix of the United States.

Red Wings Jolt Montreal, 7-2

DETROIT (UPI) —The fired-up Detroit Red Wings treated the proud Montreal Canadiens like a pack of minor league beginners Sunday night and humiliated the National Hockey League's defending champions, 7-2, in an explosive flurry that kept an Olympia Stadium crowd of 13,563 howling.

It was the worst defeat Detroit has given the Canadiens since Nov. 18, 1956 when a much-stronger Red Wing team powered to an 8-3 victory.

The fading Canadiens, who lost their stranglehold on the league leadership to the onrushing Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday night, have now scored only one victory in their last seven games and have lost four times over that stretch.

Billy Maxwell Wins Rich Palm Springs Golf Classic

Doug Sanders Trails Victor By 2 Strokes

Winner From Texas Earns $5,300 Prize; Arnie Palmer Third

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Pudgy Billy Maxwell, a tenancious little man on any golf course, ended a long victory drought Sunday when he captured the $50,000 Palm Springs Classic.

The 31-year-old Texan knocked out a 1-under-par 71 for a total score of 345 in this 90-hole desert marathon to haul down $5,300 top money and score his first triumph since the Memphis Open in 1958.

Maxwell, who won the U.S. Amateur championship in 1951 and at least one major PGA open a year from 1955 through 1958, resisted all pressures this sunny afternoon as some of his more feared rivals flew apart in all directions.

The biggest noise came on the 15th. It was there that Ken Venturi, who seemed headed for victory, banged two balls out of bounds and took an 8.

"That was the turning point—let's face it," Maxwell said later.

Sanders Is Second

When the excitement died down, young Doug Sanders, formerly of Miami, but now playing out of Ojai, Calif., was in second place. He made it with an eight-foot birdie putt on the crowd-packed 18th green at the Tamarisk Country Club. That gave him a 69 and a total of 347, worth $3,400.

And in third place, with a patented Palmer finish, was Arnold Palmer, who came from practically nowhere with a 69 for an overall score of 348. It earned last year's all-round champion $2,200.

Don Biggest Winner

But the tournament's biggest winner, after four days of tension and worry, was still Don January of Dallas. He shot a hole-in-one last Thursday and collected the full $50,000 bonus offered for such a feat after no one else managed to duplicate his ace.

January said he is splitting the check with no one except Uncle Sam's income tax people.

The day was desert bright and warm as the 64 professionals started out on the 7,052-yard, par 36-36—72 Tamarisk course.

Leading the pack at the start of the round were Maxwell, Ken Venturi and former U.S. Open champion Billy Casper Jr. Bob Rosburg was one stroke behind and Palmer was tied for seventh.

After the first nine holes, the big picture still included the leaders, with Venturi one stroke ahead of Maxwell, two ahead of Casper and Rosburg and four in front of the handsome young Sanders.

Early on the backside, Maxwell drew abreast of Venturi but Venturi got the stroke back and kept it until the 15th. Then he exploded. He hit two balls out of bounds and wound up with an eight on the 15th.

Venturi finished with a 76 and a total of 350, tied with Rosburg, who also had encountered trouble in the drive toward the finish.

Casper, simiarly beset by misfortune, took a 75 and wound up at 349.

Mengert Ties For 8th

Al Mengert of Phoenix, Ariz., who had led the tournament through the second and third rounds, had a 75 for 352. He was tied for eighth with former U.S. Open champion Jack Fleck and Canada's Stan Leonard.

Wake Forest Surprises In ACC Cage Race

Deacons Trim Terps, Play Duke Thursday

By The Associated Press

While Duke and North Carolina, a pair of the nation's top teams, have been getting the attention in the Atlantic Coast Conference, Wake Forest has been plodding along winning games.

Wake Forest's 78-69 victory over Maryland Saturday night, coupled with Duke's 81-77 victory over North Carolina, put the Deacons in second place in the conference standings with a 9-1 record.

Duke, ranked fourth in the nation, grabbed sole possession of the league lead with an 8-0 record, and North Carolina, ranked fifth in the country, fell to third with a 7-1 mark.

In other games Saturday, N.C. State fell to West Virginia of the Southern Conference 86-78, and Virginia beat South Carolina 90-82.

All ACC teams are idle Monday night.

The week's schedule:

Tuesday—Duke at N. C. State.
Wednesday—North Carolina at South Carolina.
Thursday—Wake Forest at Duke
Friday—Maryland at Clemson
Saturday—Maryland at South Carolina; North Carolina at Wake Forest; Navy at Virginia.

BOSTON (UPI) — Sam Jones' jump shot with three seconds remaining gave the Boston Celtics a 123-121 comeback victory over the St. Louis Hawks in a National Basketball Association game at Boston Garden Sunday.

The Celtics were forced to overcome an 11-point deficit at the end of three periods in collecting their ninth win in their last 11 games.

Boston tied the game 121 - all with 40 seconds remaining on two free throws by Tom Heinsohn. After Woody Sauldsberry missed a Hawk shot, Heinsohn took the big rebound with 19 seconds showing.

After a time out, Bob Cousy fed the ball to Frank Ramsey who spotted Sam Jones loose in the right corner of the Hawk zone. A quick pass set the stage and Jones settled the issue with his jump effort.

The Hawk big three, Bob Pettit, Cliff Hagen and Clyde Lovellette, combined for 87 points with Pettit's 5 high for both clubs. Heinsohn scored 24 to head the Celtics.

Wilt Scores 55

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Big Wilt Chamberlain poured in 55 points Sunday to lead Philadelphia to a 136-128 overtime victory over New York in a National Basketball Association game at Convention Hall.

Chamberlain scored 11 of his points in the extra period after New York had rallied to deadlock the regulation game at 119-119 on a jump shot by Phil Jordan with four seconds remaining.

Philadelphia scored nine straight points in the overtime period, seven by Chamberlain, and New York never threatened again.

Johnny Green was high for the losers with 26 points and Jordan had 23 before fouling out after 1:12 of the overtime period.

Baylor Stands Out

DETROIT (UPI) —Elgin Baylor one of pro basketball's most proficient gunners, fired in 21 points in the third quarter Sunday and sparked the Los Angeles Lakers to a come-from-behind 125-120 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

The Lakers trailed by eight points, 61-53, in the opening moments of the second half, but then Baylor went to work. With Baylor hitting from all angles, Los Angeles quickly erased the Piston lead and moved in front 97-91 by the end of the third period.

The Los Angeles star, who has averaged over 40 points a game against Detroit all season, totaled 45 Sunday to lead all scorers. Bailey Howell was high for the Pistons with 34, followed by teammate Don Ohl with 28.

The victory moved Los Angeles to within a game and a half of second place Detroit in the National Basketball Association Western Division and also snapped Detroit's six game home court winning streak.

Nats Top Royals

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) —With Dick Barnett hitting on 14 of 22 shots and scoring 34 points, the Syracuse Nationals wound up their season's series with the Cincinnati Royals with a 129-115 victory Sunday.

The triumph was the Nats' sixth in the 10-game series and the loss dropped the Royals 4 games behind Los Angeles in the race for the final National Basketball Association's Western playoff spot.

Game scoring honors went to Oscar Robertson, who was a one-man Royal show with 38 points.

A crowd of only 1,813 turned out. It was held down because of the heavy snow fall here.

Johnson Choice In Title Scrap

Picked Over Bowdry In Florida Tuesday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harold Johnson of Philadelphia is favored at 3-5 to beat Jesse Bowdry of St. Louis Tuesday night at Miami Beach for the vacant NBA version of the light heavyweight championship.

Their scheduled 15-rounder tops the week's boxing list, which includes two good welterweight fights.

Welter contenders Denny Moyer of Portland, Ore., and Charley Scott of Philadelphia meet in a nationally televised (ABC) 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

And an international welterweight scrap at Paris Monday night brings together Cuban Isaac Logart, former top contender, and Hippolyte Annex, champion of France, for a 10-rounder.

Tuesday night's Johnson-Bowdry fight at the Miami Beach Convention Hall is for the National Boxing Association's hunk of the world 175-pound championship, vacated last year by the NBA because of Archie Moore's long delay in making a defense.

Meeting Postponed

The regular meeting of the Western Maryland-Eastern West Virginia Basketball Officials Association, scheduled for tonight, has been postponed, according to Jack Chisholm, secretary. No new date for the meeting has been set.

Schoeppner Stops Roux

German Retains European Title

DORTMUND, Germany (UPI)—Unbeaten Erich Schoeppner of Germany kept his European light heavyweight championship Sunday night on a 13th-round technical knockout over Paul Roux of France, whose left ear was battered so badly the referee stopped the fight.

Schoeppner extended his unbeaten string as a professional to 34 bouts. They include one draw. Erich, the ex-fireman of Dortmund, was well ahead on points when the referee intervened.

Schoeppner weighed 174 pounds; Roux, 173¼.

Archer Cops 30th In Row

Longshoreman Wins Over Don Fullmer

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten Joey Archer now has a string of 30 straight victories and the promise of plenty of work following his upset triumph over middleweight contender Don Fullmer.

The 22-year-old New York longshoreman made good in his big time debut Saturday night when he won a split decision over Fullmer in a television 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

Fullmer, 21-year-old kid brother of NBA middleweight champion Gene Fullmer, had racked up an unbeaten streak of eight and was rated the No. 6 contender in the middleweight division.

Although he was fighting on Archer's home grounds, Fullmer was the 7-5 favorite.

It was a fast fight most of the way. Archer cheered on by a partisan crowd of about 1,500, apparently caught the eyes of Referee Jimmy Devlin and Judge Frank Forbes with his jabs at long range.

Devlin voted for Archer, 7-3 in rounds. Judge Frank Robes had it 8-2 in favor of Archer. Judge Leo Birnbaum called it a draw, giving each 5 rounds and 6 points. The Associated Press card had Fullmer in front, 6-4.

Dane Cops Title

PARIS (AP) — Defending champion Jorgen Ulrich of Denmark won the French indoor tennis championship Sunday 7-5, 4-6, 8-10, 6-3, 6-4 over Billy Knight of Britain.

Bowie May Resume Racing Wednesday

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Snow-battered Bowie has called a halt to racing activities until Wednesday.

The track had planned to reopen Monday, after being snowed out Friday and Saturday, and had hoped to make up one of its lost days on Tuesday, normally a "dark day."

But after Friday's snowfall was removed, it was found more time would be needed to put the track in racing condition.

Oakland Man Will Address Sawmill Group

Association Meets At Jackson's Mill

OAKLAND — William C. Anderson, executive vice-president and director of the Harco Lumber Company near here, will discuss "Problems In Buying West Virginia Lumber" at the winter meeting of the West Virginia Sawmill Operators Association at the State 4-H Camp at Jackson's Mill, February 24 and 25, according to Phil Berthy, extension forester at West Virginia University.

"Sales" will be the theme for the two-day meeting.

"This is a subject of vital importance to all of the Mountain State's 800 sawmill operators, and the many highly-qualified speakers on the program will make the meeting well worth while," Berthy commented here today.

A native of West Virginia, Mr. Anderson was educated at Davis and Elkins College. He has a broad experience in West Virginia as an employee of the State Conservation Commission. He has been actively engaged in the lumber business since 1938. He has been in the lumber manufacturing and retailing business for himself, and has had broad administrative and sales experience with such companies as the Thomas and Proetz Lumber Co., St. Louis, Mo.; the Lakewood Lumber Co., Callion, Ark., and since 1956, has been employed as general sales manager for the Hardwood Corporation of America, Asheville, N. C. Mr. Anderson is keenly interested in the welfare of the lumber business in West Virginia and is a strong advocate of the West Virginia Sawmill Operators Association, Mr. Berthy pointed out.

Anyone interested in West Virginia's wood-using industry will be welcome to attend and take part in this meeting which will begin at 1 p.m., Friday, Feb. 24, and which will be concluded after lunch on Saturday, Feb. 25, the Extension forester stressed. Reservations may be made by writing to the West Virginia Sawmill Operators Association, c/o West Virginia University, Morgantown, West Virginia.

FROM FIRE TO ICE—Any motorist who has battled ice on his windshield will sympathize with the owners of two autos that were caught near a blaze in Philadelphia. It appears the cars will be part of a winter sculpture for some time. Spray from fire hoses in freezing weather caused the spectacular icing.

Casselman Valley Club Will Meet Tuesday Night

OAKLAND — The Casselman Valley Homemakers' Club will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. D. W. Klotz. Mrs. Wayne Durst and Mrs. Freeman Bietzel will give the demonstration on selecting your most becoming hat. The McHenry Club will meet at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the basement of the E. U. B. Church. Mrs. Charles Bowman and Mrs. Carl Duckworth will present the clothing demonstration. Mrs. Oscar Savage will give a book report and Mrs. Charles Thomas will tell the group about Portugal.

The Route 40 Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the school cafeteria. Mrs. Donald Kamp and Mrs. Joshua Turner will give the demonstration. Mrs. Emory Rosenberger will give a book report and Mrs. Edward Crowe will give the International Relations report.

The Oakland Homemakers Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. T. C. Bittinger.

The basic clothing workshop for the Oakland area will meet at 1 p.m., February 7 in the Lutheran Parish House for the demonstration at 10:30 a.m., those with special problems and beginning Clothing Construction will meet to work.

The workshop in Grantsville will meet at 10:30 a.m. for those with special problems, and 1:00 p.m. for the demonstration on February 8, in the Methodis Church basement in Grantsville.

Sweetheart Ball Set April 7

PIEDMONT — Reports of a skating party were given at the meeting of the Tri-Valley Senior Scout Council recently at Trinity Methodist Church, with John Shaw, president, in charge.

Art Shaffer's Orchestra of Keyser, will play for the annual Sweetheart Ball at Bruce High School on April 7.

Joyce Wilt and Peggy Hitt were appointed by Shaw to make arrangements for a sleigh riding party in Garrett County on Happy Hills Farm.

On their annual fall trip to Bethesda October 21 and 22 they will spend October 21 in Washington. They will eat their meals at the Bolling Air Force Base.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Senior Girl Scout Troop 103 of Piedmont.

The next meeting of the group will be a swimming party at Romney on March 1.

Defunct Elkins Bank Completes Liquidation

ELKINS, W. Va. (UPI) — The now defunct Elkins National Bank began liguidation of its assets in February, 1934. Now, 27 years later, trustees of the bank will make final payments to depositors who had money in the institution when the liquidation began.

Keith Cunningham, attorney for the trustees, said the final act will be payment of some $32,250 in dividends to 2,236 depositors who had accounts in the bank when it closed its doors after the famous "bank holiday" of 1934.

About 50 per cent of depositors were paid out right after the bank began liquidation. For the remainder, a depositor received a certificate of participation in the trusted assets, bearing 2 per cent interest.

Some 2,000 other depositors with small accounts were paid in full during the first years of the liquidation process. Since then payments and interest were made to the remaining depositors as the funds became available.

A total of $348,000 was paid out over that period. The last payment to be distributed Monday is for unpaid 9 per cent balance of interest due depositors.

WILLIAM D. KELLEY

Body Of Local Pilot Is Found

William D. Kelley Jr., 36-year-old technical director of Allegany instrument Company, was found dead at nightfall Saturday in the wreckage of the light plane in which he disappeared Thursday night on a flight alone from Salt Lake City to the northern Utah community of Brigham City.

Mr. Kelley, who lived at 131 Cumberland Street with his wife and six children, was flying his own plane to Brigham iCty to deliver it to John Wallen, of that city, who had purchased it.

The wreckage was spotted on a small hill called Magpie Peak about 20 miles northwest of Brigham City.

Mr. Kelley's body was taken to a mortuary in Brigham City.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Kelley, Sr., Charleston, W. Va., arrived here Saturday night to be with their grandchildren. The widow was taken to Memorial Hospital suffering with shock and grief.

A native of Bluefield, W. Va., he had worked a number of years for Hercules Powder Company, starting at Radford, Arsenal, Va. There he was a fellow worker of Duard Little, now manager of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory of Hercules.

He left Hercules and went with Thiokol Chemical Corporation at Brigham City, where as quality control manager he headed an instrumentation group composed of 700 technicians and scientists.

Eighteen months ago, he returned to Hercules and was in the main office at Wilmington, Del. Last September he joined Allegany Instrument as its technical director.

Mr. Kelley had been flying planes for the past 18 months and had experience in the area in which he crashed.

He held a private pilot's license with instrument rating and had 1,000 flying hours to his credit.

During World War II, he served in Germany with the armed forces.

The body is at the Rogers Funeral Home.

Services will be at the funeral home today at 2 p.m. with Rev. R. Edelle Monroe, pastor of Janes Methodist Church, officiating. Interment will be in Thorn Rose Cemetery.

Head Of Police Gives Report At Frostburg

Summons Books Are Discussed

FROSTBURG — City Police Commissioner William Goebel announced recently that his department held a meeting with Trial Magistrate Edward P. Flanigan to discuss the new uniform summons books and the point system recently inaugurated over the state.

According to Commissioner Goebel, a panel including himself, Magistrate Flanigan and Chief of Police Donald Griffith was formed and questions from members of the Police Department concerning the new regulations were answered.

It was pointed out that the new summons books are the same as those used by the state police and that a copy of every summons for a violation within the city will now be given to the state. If the violation comes under the point system the state will then record that violation against the violators record. Heretofore Goebel said, city violations were not recorded against a motorists record unless it became a state case.

Goebel also pointed out that the newest member of his department, Patrolman James Pfaff is now attending the State Police Academy for instruction in police work. This training has been going on for over a year and as a result all members of the department have had at least one session at the academy. An eight week course is being lined up and will be given locally by some member to be designated from the local state police barracks.

Goebel said that in the last two and one half years the entire department has been reorganized as to personnel and duties. At the request of other departments of the city, police are available for protection such as with the street department while moving snow from the streets at night. During the entire time that the crew is working, one of the night shift police is on duty. Goebel said that as a result there have been no accidents and that also through the enforcement of the snow parking ordinance and the cooperation of the public streets have been opened up despite the abnormal amount of snow.

During recent weeks several severe breaks have occurred in water lines on Main Street. The police have aided in directing traffic and seeing that safety precautions have been taken to protect the workers.

Other training for the department has included courtesy in dealing with the public, more supervision in directing traffic, city-wide coverage in night patroling by cruiser, instructing the officers on discretion in issuing tickets for parking violations on red and yellow lines.

In closing his report Goebel stated he felt the department was now operating more as police departments should than at any time since he took office and that the 12-man department will do all it can to give Frostburg the police protection it deserves.

Uncle Sam, your bank, and you

How this 20-year-old partnership helps keep America strong

Since May 1941, America's banks have sold nearly 2 billion separate U.S. Savings Bonds at no cost to the Government or the purchasers. To give you some idea of the time involved: if you merely handed out that many Bonds at the rate of 1 a second for 10 hours a day, it would take you 152 years to reach the bottom of the pile.

Why have the nation's banks and bankers carried on this vast project of information, service, and issuance of U.S. Savings Bonds?

A winning team. For one reason, the Bond Program and the Banking business have grown together. Hand in hand, they've helped make Americans the saving-est people in the world.

Folks who save Bonds get the thrift habit. They soon learn other forms of saving and investment. They become better all-around bank customers. And Bond owners are better credit risks.

Another thing bankers are interested in: Bond dollars help keep America strong. A good reason for the banking business or any business to get behind the Bond program.

What you buy at the Bond Window. When your banker advises you to buy U.S. Savings Bonds, he's recommending an investment guaranteed to grow: $18.75 becomes $25 in 7 years, 9 months, and grows to $36.25 in another 10 years. They can be cashed in anytime with interest. And if they're lost or destroyed, the Treasury Department replaces them free.

Why not take this advice offered by the nation's bankers. Buy and hold U.S. Savings Bonds—for the things you want, and the Peace to enjoy them.

"America's Banks are proud to be part of the Bond Program," says Carl A. Bimson, President, Valley National Bank, Phoenix, Arizona, and President, American Bankers Assn.

"We believe it is good for America, an economic stabilizer; it is good for the individual and the community; and it is good for banking. The promotion of Savings Bonds has helped to make savers out of non-savers, to revitalize the American tradition of thrift, and to build savings in all forms to record levels.

"The American Bankers Association congratulates the Nation and the public on the 20-year success story of the U.S. Savings Bonds Program, and pledges its vigorous continued support."

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 22 years old and I've been told by women as well as men that I am beautiful.

My measurements are similar to Miss Michigan's, take or give an inch here and there. My face is the classic beauty type — high cheek bones and slender nose.

I've always been interested in dramatics and I want to be an actress. The trouble is, my legs aren't very good. They are bowed. Is there any exercise or surgical operation to correct this defect? If it weren't for my legs I think I could be a great dramatic actress. Can you help me? — ADELLE

DEAR ADELLE: If you want to be an actress it doesn't matter whether your legs are like this ( ) or like this)(.

I know of no exercises that will help, and my medical consultants tell me that surgery is advisable only in cases of extreme physical deformity.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago I married a nice, homeloving girl. Five months later I took out a waitress on a dare. There wasn't much to it. I just wanted to show the fellows I could. My wife found out and raised a big fuss — tears and the whole miserable bit.

I promised her I'd never do it again and meant to keep my word. Everything was great until she went home to care for her sick mother in November. She was gone three weeks and I had to eat in restaurants all the time. A guy can get pretty lonesome, so I weakened and asked the waitress if she'd like to go out after work. We went together about five times after that. Mostly laughs and like that.

I don't know how my wife found out but she did. Now she says she'll never trust me again. Please help me to get her to understand that boys will be boys. — HIC CUP

DEAR HIC: Boys will be boys all right but they look pretty silly the second time 'round. Since your weakness seems to be waitresses why not stick to automats when you're on your own?

A man whose record is as shoddy as yours has to work doubly hard at building his wife's confidence. It's performance that counts, so get busy, Bub.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A girl friend has been in my room since the third grade. We are now high school juniors. She has not done one page of homework in all this time.

Her grandfather does her history, her uncle does her math, and her mother reads all the books she is supposed to report on for English. This girl's brother is very good at Spanish and he does every bit of her translating.

I work hard in school and do all my own homework. But her grades are always better than mine and it burns me up. I feel like telling the teachers. Do you think I would be justified? — HONEST BUT UNSUCCESSFUL

DEAR H. BUT U.: Don't be so hasty with The Informer bit. Nobody could fake out the teachers to the extent that you suggest. Who recites for this girl in class? Who takes her exams? Surely not her relatives. The girl may be getting help, which I agree is unfair, but she must know more than you think or the roof would have caved in long ago.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DOUBLE DOME: No slur of Robert Hutchins was intended. Many scholars have exchanged academic robes for foundation garments and continued to serve mankind.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teen-agers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Byrd Advocates Scenic Highway In West Virginia

DAVIS, W. Va. (UPI) — Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., Sunday said construction of a new scenic highway through the Monongahela National Forest was a definite need of West Virginia.

Such a highway, he said, would stimulate tourism by opening the state's scenic vistas to more Americans. Byrd completed Sunday a three-day tour of the 800,000 acre Forest.

He said he would ask the National Forest Service to make a study on the feasibility of building a road to run the length of the forest here.

Kennedy Double Talk Charged By Pravda

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda joined Sunday in growing Soviet faultfinding with President Kennedy's State of the Union message. It concluded Kennedy was using double talk.

The Soviet Communist party organ said Kennedy's speech last Monday brought to life "stillborn myths" about the Communist desire for world domination.

It also criticized the new U. S. President for his words about hope for eventual restoration of freedom in the Communist nations of East Europe.

Pravda promised "full Soviet support" for any moves by the Kennedy administration to help patch up Soviet - American relations. But the general tone of its article and previous comment by the magazine Life Abroad and the government newspaper Izvestia tended to lower the temperature of the warm atmosphere generated here by relatively friendly articles immediately after Kennedy's inauguration.

County Realizes $13,436 Interest

Allegany County has received $13,436.19 in interest since last July 1 from funds which have been on time deposits in Cumberland and Frostburg banks until they are needed.

County Commissioner John T. Mason, who reported on the interest, said that the county received a total of $3,227.90 from $200,000 which had been on deposit until Feburary 1.Half of this was in the Cumberland Savings Bank and the other $100,000 in the Second National Bank.

Sunny Weather Is Predicted Again Today

Roads Reported In Good Shape

Two sunny days in a row was almost unbelievable, but that's what the weatherman predicts again today.

Much of the snow which fell last week was melted Saturday and yesterday by the warm sunshine which boosted the temperature up to 41 degrees.

The mercury is scheduled to range from 32 to 38 degrees today.

Some of the snow-clogged streets in Cumberland were cleaned yesterday by city workmen who manned the heavy snow removal equipment.

They got assist from Mother Nature who supplied the warm sunshine which melted away much of the snow.

The offficial low temperature in Cumberland yesterday was 26 degrees, and at 6 p.m. the temperature one degree above the freezing point of 32, said Robert R. Golden, weather observer here.

U.S. Route 40 east and west of Cumberland is reported in good shape by State Police.

Weather observers throughout Maryland agree that this has been one of the worst winters in the state's history. While statistical reports were incomplete, some areas have received more snow this winter than at any time in at least 20 years.

In Garrett County, winter snow has reached the 99.5-inch mark, and high precipitation levels also have been reported elsewhere.

Job Protection Bill Backed By Typographers

Cumberland Typographical Union Local 244 will send a representative to Annapolis on Thursday when the Judiciary Committee of the House of Delegates will hold a hearing on a union-backed bill.

Carl R. Weatherholt, a member of the local union, will represent Western Maryland at the hearing when the "job protection bill," House Bill 178, will be aired at the 10:30 a. m. meeting.

The legislation pertains to the importation of strike breakers either from in-state or out-of-state. A similar law is now in effect in five states.

Ronald N. Sterne, president of Local 244, said last night that N. D. Lee, representative of the International Typographical Union, requested that a local representative be sent to the hearing in Annapolis.

During a meeting of the local yesterday it was decided to send Mr. Weatherholt to the Annapolis hearing.

Mr. Sterne urged all residents of Allegany County to write to Senator Charles See or members of the county delegation asking that they back the passage of the bill.

The passage of a similar bill is now being backed by typographical unions throughout the nation.

Church Committee Seeks Meeting On School Buses

A committee from SS. Peter and Paul's Catholic Church wrote to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners requesting a meeting at the parish school or parish hall some evening on a question pertaining to school bus transportation.

John J. Rowan, president of the Board of County Commissioners, wrote the committee inviting the members to attend one of the regular meetings of the commissioners from 10 a.m. until noon each Tuesday and Friday.

The letter was signed by Rev. Marius J. Elsener, pastor. Listed on the committee were a Mr. and Mrs. Counihan, M. C. McKenzie, Mrs. Virgil Abe, Francis Koontz, George Lovenstein, Thomas L. Smith and Paul Boch.

ATHOL N. GIBSON

Local Engineer Retires After 43 Years With B&O

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

A local resident who celebrated the Fourth of July in 1917 by reporting for work as a fireman with the B&O Railroad retired the other day as an engineer with over 43 years of service.

Athol N. Gibson of 209 Fifth Street yesterday proudly said that he never had an accident or injured anyone during his lengthy railroading career.

He was born in Free Union, Va., and grew up on his father's farm. When he was 10 years old the family moved to West Virginia and his father became affiliated with the lumber business.

This was about the time the Western Maryland Company extended its trackage from Cumberland to Durbin, W.Va. and while working with his father in the lumber business he became acquainted with railroading.

After reporting for work on July 4, 1917, young Gibson was placed on the extra fireman's list and eventually got a regular run between Wheeling and Grafton, W.Va.

Worked On Fast Freights

For about two years he was a fireman on a passenger run and later went back to firing on fast freight trains such as the Columbus 97 and 196.

On May 18, 1923 he was promoted to engineer and things went smoothly behind the throttle until 1931 during the depression when he was furloughed for a number of months.

When some men were needed on the Newark Division in Columbus, Ohio, he went there for about six months. After going back to Wheeling for about a week he volunteered for the Cumberland Division and was on this division from April 1, 1941 until the time of his retirement.

During World War II he again became a passenger engineer and moved soldiers between Cumberland, Hagerstown and Brunswick.

In recent years he was an engineer on freight trains between Keyser and Fairmont.

Plans To Fish, Hunt

Mr. Gibson is a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and of Second Baptist Church here.

He and his wife, Minnie B. Gibson, have three children, Athol N. Gibson Jr. of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Zelma Allen, also of Philadelphia; City Police Officer Harold Gibson; and nine grandchildren.

He has no particular plans for the immediate future. Fishing in the summertime, squirrel hunting in the autumn and visiting his children and grandchildren will keep him busy during his retirement, he said.

Mathias Wants To Testify On District Bill

Rep. Charles McC. Mathias has asked for an opportunity to testify when a committee of the House of Delegates takes up the question of setting up an eighth Congressional district for Maryland.

He made the request in a letter to Del. Ridgely P. Melvin, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. Mr. Mathias said he understood that committee would hold hearings.

If the proposals are considered by some other committee, Rep. Mathias asked that his request to testify be referred to that committee.

Last Wednesday, Gov. J. Millard Tawes, after a conference with Democratic leaders in the General Assembly, announced that they had agreed that the new district should be made up of Prince Georges and Howard counties, both of which are now in the Fifth District.

Rep. Mathias, Maryland's only Republican member of the House of Representatives, runs for election in a far-flung district that includes Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick and Montgomery counties.

Firemen Plan Smoker April 15 At Lonaconing

Three Committees Are Appointed

The annual smoker of the Allegany-Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association will be held Saturday, April 15 at Lonaconing.

Barton and Clarysville also submitted bids for the smoker which were considered yesterday afternoon during an association meeting in the Mt. Savage fire hall.

Jack Eichhorn of Lonaconing was named chairman of entertainment and will be assisted by Thomas Storey, Clarysville, Michael Walters, Corriganville, Joseph Wenrick, Cresaptown, and John Prichard of Grantsville.

Alvin Rankin of Frostburg was named chairman of the ways and means committee and will be assisted by Francis Philpot, Shaft, George Comp Jr., Deer Park, Robert Dickel, Mt. Savage and Cleo Helmick, Flintstone.

Cromwell C. Zembower is in charge of invitations. He is being assisted by David E. Kirk, Bowling Green, and Francis Fatkin.

Convention Plans

Mr. Zembower, association secretary, reported at the meeting yesterday that he will send out statements for dues for this year and credential lists for delegates and alternates to the association convention in June at Bowling Green.

A special bulletin listing past officers and the hosts of past conventions will be given out at the 49th convention. Again this year the association will give $125 in parade prizes for member companies and the host company will be responsible for prizes to outside organizations.

Favor U. Md. Center

The two-county association yesterday went on record favoring Frostburg State Teachers College as a branch of the University of Maryland.

The by-laws committee submitted a number of changes which will be voted upon in June at the convention. Among them is changing the time of the convention to July. At present the convention is held between the last Thursday in May and the second Thursday in June.

The firemen's training committee called attention to the fact that the next training session at Bowling Green will be held on the second Wednesday in March since the instructors from the Fire Service Extension at the University of Maryland will be in Memphis, Tenn., attending the national fire conference scheduled for the date of the regular training session at Bowling Green.

Tax Bill Opposed

Francis Fatkin, chairman of the statistical committee, said forms have been mailed to the association members and he urges 100 per cent cooperation in filling them out. He is also the chairman of the state association and reported he mailed out 286 reports throughout Maryland.

The association is seeking additional information on House Bill 167 in Congress which would tax fire companies for unrelated business incomes. The association went on record against the measure.

The next association meeting, scheduled for March 5 at Bloomington, has been transferred to the fire hall in Barton.

After yesterday's meeting a dinner was served by the ladies auxiliary of the host company. Nineteen companies were present, and 11 past presidents attended.

College Expansion—4

Expanded Student Body Requires More Housing

This is the fourth in a series of factual articles about the proposed unification of Frostburg State Teachers College and the University of Maryland. Today's article deals with the expanded housing that would be needed to take care of the enlarged enrollment which would come as a center of the University.

By ALBERT D. DARBY
News Staff Writer

The study of the feasibility of unifying the state-supported instructional programs of the State Teachers colleges and the University of Maryland projected an enrollment of 1,500 students at Frostburg State Teachers College.

This report was submitted to Governor J. Millard Tawes last August by the committee which was headed by Dr. Albin O. Kuhn, executive vice president of the University of Maryland.

During the 1959-60 school year when this study was undertaken, the enrollment at Frostburg was 798. This year it has increased to 1,064, according to Dr. R. Bowen Hardesty, president of the college.

More Attending

Dr. Kuhn's enrollment projection of 1,500 students in the college as a center of the University of Maryland was based on an expected increase in the proportion of the high school graduates attending college with a university center in their midst. It was anticipated that the percentage of Allegany and Garrett County high school graduates attending college would increase from the 17.4 per cent as existed in 1957 to 28 per cent by 1970.

About one-third of the high school graduates of these two counties who enroll in college in September after graduation attend out-of-state colleges. The Kuhn committee believes that with the university center in Frostburg and with the increasing problem of out-of-state admission in colleges and universities, it is expected that that one-fourth of those students who now attend college outside Maryland can be expected to attend the university center. About one-half of the students who now enter the University of Maryland in College Park from Allegany and Garrett counties could be expected to attend the University center at Frostburg.

500 From Outside

With this projection, the Kuhn committee estimated that 800 to 1,000 students from Allegany and Garrett counties will attend a university center in Frostburg by 1970. No fewer than 500 other students from outside these two Western Maryland counties could be expected to attend the Frostburg center of the university.

Dr. Kuhn and his committee anticipated that just over half of the 1,500 students expected would be housed in on-campus dormitories. One of the features of the 10-year capital improvement program of $4,050,919 proposed for the Frostburg institution as a center of the University of Maryland is dormitory facilities for 350 students at a cost of $3,500 per student or $1,225,000.

A new dormitory housing 120 students is scheduled for completion next September. That will bring the adequate housing on campus to 401 students. Facilities for 350 more would take care of a total of 751, just one more than half of the projected enrollment of 1,500.

A good many of the other 50 per cent of the student body would be expected to commute. For instance, 41 per cent of the 781 enrolled at the college in the 1959-60 school year commuted to homes, primarily in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Others would look for accommodations in private homes. Dr. Hardesty reported last month that 217 students at Frostburg now rent rooms in private homes there. It is understood that virtually all of the available rooms

Pullen Assails Plan To Unite College, U. Md.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State Superintendent of Schools, has assailed backers of a plan to unite Frostburg State Teachers College with the University of Maryland.

The educator has called on representatives of the State Board of Education, the University of Maryland, Morgan State College and the junior colleges to meet to consider the future of higher education in Maryland.

Referring to a bogged-down plan for converting Frostburg, Salisbury and Towson State Teachers colleges into branches of the University of Maryland, Dr. Pullen said supporters of the plan now "are attempting to do piecemeal what they didn't do originally."

Dr. Pullen said a solution to the controversy might be reached if representatives of the schools and the state board met to formulate a plan subject to approval by Gov. Tawes and the Legislature.

The consolidation proposal by the Western Maryland committee rekindled a flaming debate which began early last year. At that time the governor's commission, led by Edwin Warfield 3rd, proposed the conversion of three of the state's five teachers colleges into branches of the University of Maryland.

After drawing opposition from the State Board of Education, the Maryland State Teachers Association and parent-teacher groups, the plan went before Gov. Tawes and the Legislative Council for further study last month.

Noting that the Western Maryland group had not consulted the State Board of Education before submitting its proposal to the Board of Regents, Dr. Pullen said the plan should not "be rammed through without the full consideration of all parties concerned."

Social Studies Conference Due Thursday

Students Off, Teachers Busy

Allegany County public elementary school children are scheduled for a holiday Thursday but all of the county's elementary school teachers appear in for a busy day attending a social studies conference at West Side School.

Actually, the conference will begin Wednesday when Dr. George Manolakes, chairman of the Department of Early Childhood and Elementary Education at New York University, visits three Cumberland schools to observe first, second, fifth and sixth grade social studies classes.

Wednesday morning, Dr. Manolakes will observe two classes at Gephart School and one at East Side School. At Gephart he will see Mrs. Mary B. Marple's second grade class and Mrs. Glennie S. Shelton's first and second grade class. He then will go to East Side and observe Miss Orpha A. Clark's sixth grade class.

Will Visit Three

That afternoon, Dr. Manolakes will visit three classrooms at West Side School. He will see Miss Marie D. Ingles' first grade class, Miss Leona W. Myers' fifth grade class and Mrs. Nellie T. Isaacs' sixth grade class.

Immediately after school, Dr. Manolakes will confer with Mrs. Mildred Sowers, state supervisor of elementary education; Miss Margaret E. Doak, Miss Elizabeth I. Flake and Miss Mildred E. Willison, county supervisors of elementary education, and the six teachers whose classes were observed.

Thursday's program begins at 8:45 a.m. when all of the elementary school teachers meet at West Side School to hear a lecture by Dr. Manolakes on the 14 societal goals developed by the National Council for the Social Studies.

The first seven goals will be discussed at the morning session. Then the teachers will be divided into six groups, one for each grade level.

Leaders Named

The discussion leaders will include Mrs. Esther B. O'Rourke, first grade teacher at Barton; Mrs. Sue T. Dawson, principal at Midland; Harold L. Scott, principal at McCoole; Mrs. Mary M. Robinette, fourth grade teacher at Flintstone; Miss Mary E. Straw, principal at Ellerslie, and Mrs. Darlene B. Pepper, sixth grade teacher at Beall Elementary School.

Before lunch at West Side School, the entire group will reconvene to get answers to questions raised in the smaller discussions.

Dr. Manolakes will discuss the other seven goals after which the six grade levels will again split up for a discussion of their application in the classroom. Leaders for these discussions will include Mrs. Sallie S. Park, first grade teacher at Hill Street; Miss Margaret S. Ingles, second grade teacher at Johnson Heights; Mrs. Lena G. Kenney, third grade teacher at Parkside; Mrs. Ruth S. Chapman, fourth grade teacher at Columbia Street; Mrs. Annetta H. Gerson, fifth grade teacher at Cresaptown, and Arthur Max Lloyd, sixth grade teacher at Mt. Royal School.

A final discussion will be held by the entire group on questions raised by the six smaller units.

IBM Official To Speak To QC Section

Richard Owen Jr., IBM representative of the Martin Company in Baltimore, will be the guest speaker tomorrow evening at the monthly meeting of the Cumberland Section of the American Society for Quality Control.

The meeting will be held at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club. A dinner at 6:30 p. m. will precede the business session which is scheduled at 8 p. m.

Mr. Owens will speak on "More Effective Quality Control."

He is a graduate of Washington and Lee University with a B. S. degree in business administration. Following graduation, he worked as production manager trainee with Dan River Mills until accepting a commission in the Navy. He presently holds the rank of lieutenant in the Naval Reserve.

Since July 1957, Mr. Owens has been employed by International Business Machines Corporation. Last August he organized and coordinated a quality control and reliability seminar for all Martin Company plants.

Non-members of the Cumberland Section ASQC also are invited to attend tomorrow's meeting.
